Fire of unknown origin did extensive damage to the Elks Club on South Main early this morning.

Firemen said the fire began in a wall in the back barroom. Flames were confined to the room, but there was extensive smoke damage throughout the rest of the club.

Firemen were called at 3:10 a.m. and fought the fire until 4:50 a.m. Fire officials were checking the possibility of a fire being accidently set off in a trash can.

Melvin Cokenour, exalted ruler of the Elks, said future engagements at the club are cancelled until further notice.

Drivers of the cars were David Lee Simms, 29, of Chaffee, Brenda Foster, 21, of Chaffee and Jack Warren Sinch, 26, of Illmo Route One. U.S. Jets Bomb Near China Line

SAIGON (AP) — American jets swept to within 35 miles of the Chinese border Friday and smashed four bridges on the northeast railroad supplying North Vietnam from China, the U.S. Air Force announced today.

North Vietnamese antiaircraft guns downed an F4 Phantom flying fighter escort for the bomb attack but its two crewmen—two of the leading U.S. combat pilots in Vietnam— bailed out over the sea and were rescued in minutes.

Capt. Jess S. Feinstein, 27, East Troy, Wis., and Lt. Col. Carl G. Baily, 41, Denver, Colo., managed to ride their crippled plane north and east over the sea before bailing out, the Air Force said. A helicopter from Da Nang Air Base picked them up 20 minutes later.

Feinstein has been credited with four MIG kills, one short of becoming the Air Force's first Vietnam ace. Baily has been credited with downing two MIGs. The pilots fly protective escort missions for the fighter bombers attacking targets on the ground.

The bridges that were knocked out had been attacked several times previously but had been rebuilt, the Air Force said. In the latest raid, three were reported destroyed while a fourth had its approach cratered.

Three Federal Aqencies Probe Death

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The explosion-murder of Louis D. Shoulders, Jr., ex-convict and St. Louis union figure, was under investigation by at least three federal agencies as well as St. Louis police, Taney County sheriff's deputies and Missouri Highway patrolmen late Friday.

Shoulders, who was among those subpoenaed before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee in 1958 during hearings in St. Louis, was killed early Friday and a companion, T. J. Harvill, seriously injured, when Shoulders' 1972 Cadillac was torn to shreds by a bomb blast after a night of fishing on Table Rock Lake near Branson, Mo.

A Taney County sheriff's deputy said there was a "strong smell of nitrate similar to gunpowder" in the air when he arrived at the scene at the Long Creek boat dock, where Shoulders and Harvill had moored their boat after a night of fishing.

Highway Patrol investigators said the bomb apparently had been placed under the driver's seat.

Taney County Sheriff Lyman Cardwell said it was Shoulders' custom to go fishing about 10 p.m. and return between 1 and 2 a.m.

Harvill, 49 and head of the Eastern Missouri Laborers District Council, was listed in serious condition Friday night at the Cox Medical Center in Springfield, where he underwent surgery earlier.

WHO PAYS FOR MERGERS?

When American Airlines took over Trans Caribbean Airways two years ago, it laid off 81 of 185 flight crew employees on Trans Caribbean. It then arranged for the 104 other employees to be transferred to lower-paying jobs. The check pilot for Trans Caribbean, for example, ended up as an engineer on American, though he is extremely well qualified. He was formerly a test pilot at Boeing, and a captain on Consolidated.

He is just one of the 104 who were demoted. His pay was cut 60 percent, and his pension in eight years will be $500 a month less than it would have been.

The President and Board Chairman of American Airlines wrote a letter on March 30, 1970 to all the employees, promising that no one would suffer a loss in pay as a result of the merger. The letter was also signed by the President and Board Chairman of Trans Caribbean. Apparently they had no intention of keeping their word.

A businessman's word should be his bond. It still is to most businessmen. But in our day of giant mergers, the individuals sometimes get forgotten. "Our passengers get the best of everything," claims American Airlines on its Timetable. How about justice for its pilots and their crews? Contented pilots make the best ones.

KENNEDY CENTER ANNIVERSARY

A year ago, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts was the target of widespread condemnation, acclaim and hope. Critics from the ranks of Vice President Agnew's "effete corps of impudent snobs" called the center an unimaginative, overdone architectural monstrosity without class or beauty. Others praised it as a grand and living memorial to a martyred President. Art lovers hoped that it would serve as an inspiration for a cultural renaissance throughout the country.

After almost 12 months of operation, the Kennedy Center has become a Washington institution, praised or criticized not so much for its appearance as for the kind of entertainment it has brought to the nation's capital. On Wednesday, Aug. 30, the center will launch its second season with a 12-day music festival called "The Old and The New." The 32 concerts, 10 of them free, will feature the works of 70 composers -- from Claude Debussy to John Cage and Elliott Carter.

In late March, Kennedy Center Chairman Roger L. Stevens claimed a Washington Convention and Visitor's Bureau survey had shown that, "The Kennedy Center is the most popular tourist attraction in the country next to Disneyland." A center spokesman told Editorial Research Reports that between its opening on Sept. 8, 1971, and the end of July 1972, more than 2 million visitors had toured the center and another 1.6 million had attended performances. During that same period, an estimated 3.5 million tourists visited nearby Arlington National Cemetery.

One of the major problems of the Kennedy Center is money. Building costs exceeded $72 million, of which $4.5 million still remains to be paid. In the early months of operation, acts of vandalism were common and many of the expensive fixtures which were stolen have not been replaced. Until Congress agreed to a $1.5 million authorization on June 7, it was feared that tourists would be required to pay an admission fee to meet the center's maintenance and security expenses.

Complaints of financial mismanagement persist. In a report made public Aug. 15, the U.S. General Accounting Office charged that faulty budgeting and accounting procedures had led to fiscal chaos at the center. Stevens retorted that the report had been based "largely [on] past history" and that "There have been sweeping changes in personnel and audit procedures." All in all, it seems that the Kennedy Center's second season almost certainly will be more cost- conscious than the first.

FIGHTING FOR A BEACHHEAD

City residents long have felt antipathy toward suburbanites who flock into town to enjoy parks, zoos and museums without making any contribution to them as taxpayers. But this resentment is minor compared to the wrath generated on both sides of the controversy over city dwellers' access to beaches which increasingly are restricted by the laws and regulations of suburban townships and counties.

The common restrictive device is for suburban seashore communities to give residents use of their beach, free or for a nominal charge, while gouging visitors with a fee that chills the desire for a day in the sun and sand. Some communities, particularly in the crowded Northeast from Connecticut's Fairfield County down to the resort towns of southern New Jersey, simply bar visitors altogether.

The practice of restricting beach use started slowly in the 1950s and grew rapidly. But recently the courts have begun coming down on the side of public access. Last year the owners of expensive beach houses at Malibu, near Los Angeles, lost the right to block public access to the shore. In March a New York Supreme court justice struck down a 1970 law restricting the Long Beach, N.Y., beach to residents and their guests. The court said the beach, which had been built on borrowed state and federal funds and was public for 35 years, was part of an irrevocable public trust.

The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled last July 24 that even the modest $10 a month charged for a non-resident beach pass by the town of Avon- by- the- Sea violated the public trust principle. Beach restriction advocates are still not giving up. At Compo Beach in Westport, Conn., which is without public transportation and is ringed by no- parking signs, a visitor can get into the beach parking lot -- for a fee of $15. a visit.

It is time to stand up for freedom."

TENNIS FEVER

Tennis once was quite literally the sport of kings, but today it is the pastime of millions from all walks of life. It is estimated that there are around 11.5 million tennis players in the United States at present -- nearly double the number of a decade ago. As Sophy Burnham recently noted in Saturday Review (July 29, 1972), "Tennis has become democratized, professionalized, cheap, year- round, all- weather, all-hours – and to all appearances, the nation's fastest-growing sport." As further evidence of the tennis boom, Life points out (Aug. 11, 1972) that, "Now there are 100,000 U.S. courts and 5,000 new ones being added each year."

The 1972 tennis season is nearing its peak. The U.S. Lawn Tennis Association Championships will get under way at Forest Hills, N.Y., on Friday, Sept. 1. And sometime in October, the United States will meet Rumania in Bucharest in the Davis Cup finals. Meanwhile, tennis fans are following the progress of two budding superstars, America's Chris Evert and Australia's Evonne Goolagong, who divided the only two matches they have played against each other to date. "Their rivalry surely will grow into one of the finest in tennis history," Bill Nichols predicted (Aug. 12, 1972) in The Sporting News.

The current surge of interest in tennis stands in sharp contrast to the low opinion in which it formerly was held in this country. The Encyclopedia of Sports observes that tennis was long regarded "as 'a girl's game' and was subjected ... to masculine ridicule because 'love" is one of the scoring terms used in the sport. No other game was treated with so much indifference and to so many slurs."

For many years tennis also was regarded, and rightly so, as a game played almost exclusively by the well- to- do. Posh tennis clubs still exist and are flourishing. But now the sport has invaded the ghetto as well as the suburbs. A major attraction is the fact that the only equipment needed is a racquet, a ball, and a pair of sneakers. These days, a person who asks that hoary old question, "Tennis, anyone?" will find plenty of takers.

The most important element in advertising is not the cost, but the results obtained.

Advertisers have acquired the concept of three dimensions in selling. Space is only the first dimension in selling. When a businessman realizes gains through advertising he is very likely to increase its use.

Some advertisers are even smarter. For instance, one may say, "I want to buy people, not just time and space." He then proceeds to base his advertising expenditures on the concept of "people- space." He is mrely likely to pull through hard times than his faint-hearted competitors who don't see this second dimension.

However, space and people are not enough for the thriving advertiser. He sees also a third dimension -- the depth to which his message penetrates. By advertising in the right medium he can reach a maximum market.

Most retailers have learned that the best medium for retail sales is the local newspaper. Since "all sales are local," the advertiser can reach nearly all of his customers anytime, anywhere in the newspaper which covers the local community.

The newspaper provides deep penetration. Consumers like to know exact conditions of purchase. They are likely to spend more time reading their local newspaper than any other medium available to get complete shopping information.

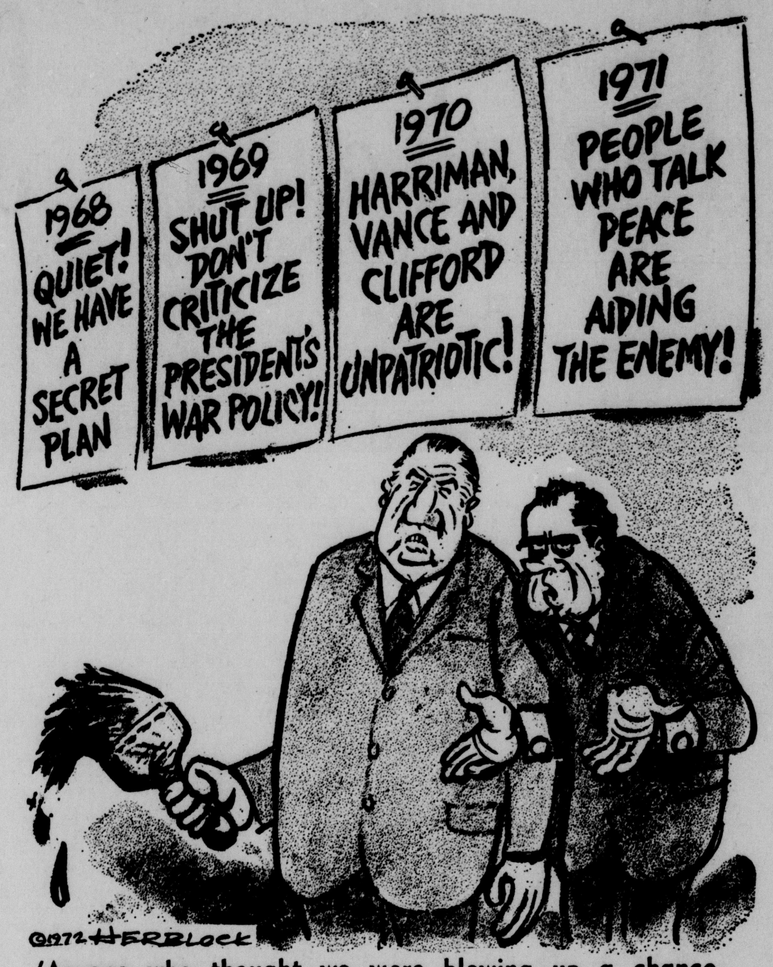

Newspapers don't operate just to sell on one dimension. They co-ordinate all sales' dimensions for the local market.

A TOUGH PROPOSITION

A lot of appliances, gadgets and automobiles appear to have less durability built into them than they did a few years ago. But appearances can be deceiving. If automobiles performed as they did 30 or 40 years ago, today's freeways would be a nightmare of clogged traffic. There was a time when every auto carried three or four spare tires. A blow out was a normal occurrence just as was mechanical failure. Millions of autos now travel the expressways during rush hours, and rarely is the traffic flow slowed by a breakdown.

The chairman of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, Inc., Mr. Elisha Gray offers one reason why U. S. consumers are dissatisfied with business. "Simply stated", he says, "their expectations have been raised to unprecedented levels -- which business often cannot fulfill." Mass production of foolproof, trouble-free, highly-complicated machines and appliances for mass use – at prices people can pay -- is a mighty tough proposition. It is also one that U. S. enterprise has tackled with a remarkable degree of success.

THE CLARK REPORT

Ramsey Clark, former attorney general in the Lyndon B. Johnson administration, has been in the enemy capital of Hanoi and he wails about the damage of United States bombing. Mr. Clark contends that dikes have been blasted and schools, homes and hospitals destroyed. In substance, the former attorney general is saying that his country is wrong in bringing the war home to the communists of North Vietnam.

He does not mention the all-out assaults launced by the North Vietnamese into the sovereign territory of South Vietnam nor the destruction of its villages and the slaughter of the South Vietnamese people. He ignores our commitment to the people and government of South Vietnam, a pledge that was made by the administration he served as attorney general.

Radio Hanoi has made the most of Clark's statements, using them in skillful worldwide propaganda. His statements have damaged our cause in the capitals of other nations and they have widened the split among our own people who want to see the Vietnamese war pressed to an honorable conclusion. The utterances of actress Jane Fonda have had a similar effect but they don't sound as authoritative as those of a former member of a President's cabinet.

It is to be hoped that the Hanoi broadcasts of Clark will not deter us from pursuing the goal of making South Vietnam a free and independent nation. Abandoning that goal would give communist invaders everywhere a green light. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Shades of Reuther:
Militant Labor Chiefs Whipping Up Surprisingly
Powerful Political Machine for McGovern.

WASHINGTON -- So this handsome, lithe, 6-foot-2, athletic, winsome and erudite youngish labor leader arrived at the McGovern for President headquarters to find out he had one problem. He looked 41. But he is 51. One of the headquarter's executive strategists -- almost 30 years his junior – gave him a hearing

Seems that the visitor, an ardent McGovern supporter who almost singlehandedly had helped smash considerable opposition to McGovern on the convention floor, had come up with an idea which might help carry New York state. He had a computer set up which could reach over 100,000 union families instantly. The younger chap listened. Then he waved it all aside. Ah, said the strategist, it's that labor thing. We'll see. Come back again some time.

The tall, handsome, lithe, athletic labor leader gave the younger chap a strong handclasp, said call me some time, and went off to Mexico -- for a long vacation.

But he'll be back to rally to the McGovern-Shriver ticket. He's one of a power phalanx of labor chiefs who are building a cost-to-coast political machine for the Democratic ticket -- a machine which has gone virtually unnoticed amid the uproar over what is being misinterpreted as "labor neutrality."

Actually there is powerful labor support for George McGovern. It will grow even stronger if the candidate's hostile young managers don't alienate the labor chiefs – as the staffers have in the past two weeks. Little of this labor support springs from affection for either George McGovern or Sargent Shriver. These labor chiefs are the traditional unreconstructed Democrats who want an ally, not a neutral, in the White House. They are the men who were the youthful militants of the final years of the Roosevelt era. They are the men who rocked and rolled with such militants, now dead, as Sidney (Clear it with Sidney) Hillman who actually invented labor politics, and the late Walter Reuther who once hoped such politics would make him president of the U.S. -- incidentally, a dream once nurtured by Hillman himself.

It was Hillman, then president of the men's clothing workers' union who organized the old CIO-Political Action Committee (PAC), and Walter, as CIO president, who had seen it as the nation's governing "party."

And now the old cast has been replaced by the youths of yesteryear – but the script is the same. It has gone virtually unnoticed that the Democratic National Committee's new executive director is William (Bill) H. Dodds – one of Hillman's and Reuther's young men. Now 50, Dodds, who apprenticed in the old CIO-PAC for Hillman and in recent years has been the United Auto Workers (UAW) chief of lobby and strategy here, is a crack administrator, Though he has worked the "Hill" for the Reuthers, for Leonard Woodcock and the auto union for more than six years, Dodds still is a member of Local 6, General Motors Division UAW. He is an old and intimate friend of candidate McGovern.

His job is to mesh with labor and all other special-interest groups as well as help operate the National Committee. Note too that this is the highest post ever held by a labor official in the Democrats' national establishment.

And there is a direct tie with the National Labor Committee for the election of McGovern-Shriver. On K Street here, this operation is swinging into gear, greased by heavy donations of several big unions. The committee raised some $500,000 in a few days. Already it has set up 30 statewide committees. Now it is swiveling down into the counties and cities. In the executive director's seat is an old Sidney Hillman youth -- Howard Samuels, on loan from the men's clothing workers' union.

Most of the money, muscle and manpower is supplied by three of the 21 unions which launched the committee-- Jerry Wurf's fantastically expanding State, County and Municipal Employees, Red Smith's powerful 900.000 - member Machinists, and the 1.5 million-member auto union. And handling the gears in the background is the UAW's vice president Pat Greathouse, another of the once-upon-a-time Reuther youth.

They've whipped up staff, specialists, cadres and all sorts of vote-getting machinery. Supposedly their contact is one or the other of McGovern's top team, Frank Mankiewicz or Gary Hart.

As Joe Beirne, head of the Communications Workers of America (500,00 members) said the other day, "We think we can win or we wouldn't be throwing our money and time into this. We're pros. We don't need the exercise."

They are pros. And they've won elections for Presidents -- including Jack Kennedy. They are militants. They get out the vote while such pro-Nixon unions as the construction workers pledge friendship and then realize they just have neither the machinery nor the experience to do more than appear in photos with friend Richard Nixon. The White House is well aware of this latter-day phenomenon.

This phenonmenon is one of the sleepers of the campaign. This labor machine could carry wuch key states as New York and California for McGovern -- especially when allied with unions that go for votes instead of headlines. There's only one "but."

"There are young, unknowing staff people around McGovern who are driving us away," one left-of-left-center labor official mused quietly the other day. "Some of those young intellectuals actually have a hatred for us labor people. We're just not revolutionary enough for them. Anything which has been around since 1968 is Establishment for them. We could win if they don't turn this into a political funeral."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON - - President Nixon has made a strong pitch for Catholic votes this fall by supporting tax credits for parents of parochial school children.

But inside the Administration's economic councils, the idea has consistently gotten a frosty reception from the President's top tax experts.

In a series of confidential memoranda, the Treasury Department's tax men have made it clear they think such credits would complicate the tax code, be difficult to police nd hard to keep under control once established.

Their warnings, however, have gone unheeded by President Nixon, who is apparently paying more attention these days to his political advisers than his economic experts.

One of the strongest memos appeared on the desk of presidential counselor John Ehrilichman as early as August 12, 1969. In it, Deputy Assistant Treasurer John Nolan, an expert on tax policy, said flatly such credits were inadvisable.

The opposition to the idea has continued ever since, although the Treasury experts have been more discreet about it since Nixon has made it plain he thought the idea would pay big political dividends.

On November 27, 1970 for example, then Assistant Treasury Secretary for Tax Policy Edwin Cohen sent another memo to the White House. Cohen discussed both the pros and cons of tax credits, but strongly hinted he didn't like the idea.

Virtually the same message was repeated in yet another Cohen memo, this one dated June 14, 1971, and addressed to the President's protector of special interests, Peter Flanigan.

Cohen expertly couched his opinions in carefull worded phrases, but his attitude was clearly negative. He pointedly reviewed the sizable opposition to tax credit plans and specifically referred to the 1969 Nolan memorandum which recommended against such schemes.

"In general," Cohen wrote, "there are a number of reasons why those concerned with income tax policy and administration are inclined to approach with reluctance the granting of an allowance through the income tax structure of deductions or credits for personal expenditures unrelated to the earning of income . . . ."

Since Cohen was the Administration expert most "concerned with income tax policy," he was apparently speaking for himself.

My associate Joseph Spear reached Cohen, who has recently been promoted to undersecretary, at his vacation retreat in Denmark, Me. He insisted that he had taken no personal position on the tax credits issue. He said he was merely summarizing the "pros and cons" in his memo to Flanigan, who was, at the time, "the White House liaison man with Treasury."

TRADE FOR PEACE

President Nixon is counting upon a trade boom to help keep the peace between the two superpowers.

He foresees a commercial relationship between the Soviet Union and the United States that will end the cold war indefinitely. His optimism is based upon the reports of U.S. officials who have been talking trade in Moscow.

They have told the President that the Soviets not only are eager to do businss with the United States, but can't understand why the United States has treated Russia commercially as a small power.

These officials predict that Soviet-American trade will start slowly, grow gradually and then suddenly boom. Shipments of grain to Russia alone, they say, will surpass the one-billion-dollar mark.

In return, Russia has developed a hugh supply of pressurized gas which the United States will need for energy. Arrangements are now being negotiated for the United States to help finance a multibillion dollar Soviet pipeline that will deliver the gas to American tankers.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

Nixon and Eagleton -- President Nixon has told intimates that, in his view, George McGovern made a mistake in dropping Tom Eagleton from the ticket. Throughout the Eagleton affair, Nixon privately sympathized with the deposed nominee. Perhaps the President remembered how he, as the Republican vice presidential candidate, had come under fire in 1962. He had been the beneficiary of a fund, underwritten by California businessmen, to help pay his senatorial expenses. Although Nixon denied the fund was tainted, GOP leaders urged that he resign from the ticket. Nixon, fighting to stay on the ticket, responded with a televised soap opera. He won; Eagleton, 20 years later, lost. The President, apparently remembering, identified with Eagleton.

Nixon's Instincts -- It's no secret that George McGovern is trying to draw President Nixon into a wide-open, slam-bang campaign. The President has assured his campaign aides that he will avoid the bobby traps the McGovernites are setting for him. The aides are worried, however, that McGovern will arouse the President's natural combative instinct. "I do not believe in being passive under attack" Nixon has said. "You must fight back in life, especially in politics."

Urge Hoarding For Atomic War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, at a time when consumers are paying record high prices for groceries, says Americans should hoard food just in case of atomic attack.

The recommendation was included in an updated pamphlet issued Thursday, the day the department reported food prices soared to record heights. The pamphlet, entitled "Family Food Stockpile for Survival," was first issued in Aug. 1961, a period when civil defense and fear of nuclear attack were prevalent.

"Every family should either build up and keep a two-week supply of regular food in the home at all times or assemble and maintain a special twoweek stockpile of survival foods in the fallout shelter or home," the USDA advised.

The publication, identified as "slightly revised" in July this year, included sample menus for families hiding in fallout shelters until threats of nuclear contamination passed.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Frigid House

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Be there ever so many payments, Roger firmly believed that there was no place like home. Thus, with wife in hand, he went out to buy one. And the one he bought was a brand new one hot off of Max's Development Line.

Unfortunately, the house turned out to be anything but hot. In fact, its heating system offered absolutely no warmth at all.

With his teeth chattering and the water on his knees frozen, Roger sued Max for selling him a frigid house with a bum heating system.

"I saw a blonde on the street the other day," he told the judge, "that radiated more heat than the pipes in my house."

"Then he should have brought her home," was Max's answer, "because once a builder sells a house, he's no longer responsible for it. Any heating difficulties become the problem of the buyer. 'Let the buyer beware!' That's the law."

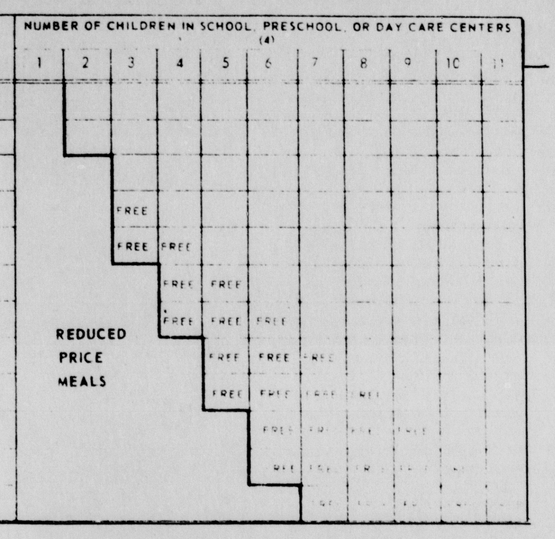

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Max liable for selling Roger a frigid house?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that ancient principles of law that make no sense in today's society should be discredited. When a person buys a home, it cannot be disputed that he relies upon the skill of the developer in providing it with a heating system that is reasonably fit for its intended purpose. And if it isn't, concluded the judge, the developer should be held responsible.

Britain's Ancient Mariner Dead At 70

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Sir Francis Chichester, Britain's old man of the sea, has developed pneumonia and his condition "is giving rise to grave anxiety," the Royal Naval Hospital here reported today.

Sir Francis, 71 next month, has been in the hospital for more than a week receiving blood transfusions. A malignant growth affecting his spine had produced anemia. Today's hospital bulletin was the first report of pneumonia complicating treatment.

Chichester gained world fame in 1967 by sailing alone around the world, making only one stop.

He pulled out of a transatlantic yacht race earlier this summer because of health problems.

A spokesman at the hospital announced: "Sir Francis Chichester died peacefully at 2:30 p.m. this afternoon."

He had been receiving treatment there for over a week, including blood transfusions.

A malignant growth affecting his spine had produced anemia. The hospital announced earlier in the day that his condition had been complicated by pneumonia.

Chichester was not the first man to sail around the world alone. Capt. Joshua Slocum, an American, completed the first solo circumnavigation in 1898.

But the Englishman was the first to do it with only a single stop, at Sydney, Australia. Chichester made the 14,100-mile journey from Britain to Australia in 107 days, and then sailed on 15,500 miles to Britain in 119 days. The trips then were the longest single-handed nonstop voyages under sail by man.

The trip earned him a knighthood from Queen Elizabeth II and a hero's welcome here on his return.

"The joy of living comes from action, from making the attempt, from the effort—not from success," he once said.

His effort captured the imagination of the world at a time when the era of space exploration was well under way.

He set out only eight years after doctors told him he had only three weeks to live. They diagnosed advanced lung cancer and said his chances of survival without an operation were nil.

Earlier this summer he had to pull out of a transatlantic yacht race because of the health problems that put him in the hospital here and proved fatal today.

Killer Bees Slowly Moving To N. America

WASHINGTON (AP) — Swarms of ferocious honey bees that have been known to kill both humans and animals are moving toward the United States from Brazil at the rate of 200 miles a year.

There seems to be no natural barrier to block the bees and they could be in North America within four to six years, says a study financed by the Agriculture Department.

"The most alarming and best-known characteristic of Brazilian bees is their aggressivenness," according to the report. "Hundreds of bees become airborne and pursue and sting any animals or people within 100 meters of the apiary.

"There are many reports of animals and even people being killed by stings of Brazilian bees," it continued.

The report issued Wednesday by the National Research Council and the National Academy of Sciences is the result of a trip by scientists last November and December to the bee area just north of the Amazon River in Brazil.

The study calls the bees "objectionable and dangerous" and says it is essential "to do whatever can be done" to keep the bees out of North America.

Commercial honey bees in the United States are of European descent. The Brazilian bee, though smaller, flies faster and farther, works harder at making honey, but become angrier much sooner than its northern relatives, the report states.

The Brazilian swarms began in 1956 when some queen bees from Africa were introduced in the state of Sao Paulo, with the intention of improving European types there. Care was taken to use sieves called "double queen excluders" for keeping the vicious African queens in place.

"Unfortunately, however, a visiting beekeeper, not understanding the situation, removed the double queen excluders and 26 swarms headed by the queens from Africa escaped in 1957," the report said.

Brazilian beekeepers tried to dilute the strain of African bees by introducing thousands of more agreeable Italian queens in 1963-64. Queens are fully mature females which mate with drones and lay thousands of eggs.

Firefighters Advance On California Blaze

Howling winds which earlier had hindered efforts to harness California's largest brush fire of the year subsided today, allowing a weary 2,100-man force to gain ground on the flames.

The winds, which whipped up to 40 miles an hour Friday night, today presented no problem in battling the 16,500-acre fire near Ojai, northwest of Los Angeles, according to Hal Sebring, U.S. Forest Service information officer.

Fire fighters worked to control a 3,440-acre fire near Banning in the San Bernardino National Forest and mop up at the scene of a 1,760-acre fire in Healdsburg in Northern California. A fire in the Sequoia National Forest remained out of control.

The Ojai fire—which authorities said was caused by illegal fireworks—had burned 350 acres of the Los Padres National Forest on the western edge of the 53,000-acre Sespe Creek sanctuary, home of the nearly extinct California condor.

A spokesman said the fire was still miles away from the birds' nesting place and most of the birds were in Kern County about 50 miles to the northeast. Only 60 of the vulture-like birds are known to exist.

Fire fighters had managed by this morning to carve a fire line around 14 miles of the blaze's 24-mile perimeter, the spokesman said.

Cost of fighting the fire was estimated at $1.5 million, he added.

The Healdsburg blaze destroyed eight homes, 18 other structures and 10 vehicles before it was controlled Thursday night. Damage to property was estimated at $113,000.

A force of 925 men using 10 air tankers contained the San Bernardino National Forest fire Friday but it was not known when it would be brought completely under control. The fire, which had a 15-mile perimeter, caused no structural damage.

In the Kern Canyon area of the Sequoia National Forest, 500 men aided by six air tankers, four small planes and helicopters sought to control a 365acre fire. There were no structures in the area, fire officials said.

F D A Plans To Regulate Blood Banking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced steps today to bring the entire blood-banking business under federal regulation for the first time.

The proposed regulations are aimed mainly at up to 5,000 small, local blood banks that account for 15 per cent of all blood and at all centers that collect blood for separation into component parts.

The regulations, slated to go into effect after a 60-day comment period, would create for the first time uniform national regulation of blood-banking.

At present only eight states license or regulate intrastate blood banking. Some 530 larger blood banks, accounting for 85 per cent of the nation's blood supplies are federally regulated because they operate across state lines.

The new regulations, in effect, extend federal regulation to all intrastate blood business. The major impact will be on community-based commercial and hospital blood banks.

Criminal penalties are called for in the new federal regulations.

Candidates Invited To Debate On Radio

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — Invitations to participate in a radio station debate have been issued to the two candidates for governor of Missouri, Democrat Ed Dowd and Republican Christopher "Kit" Bond.

The invitation to appear before a live audience here Sept. 18 or 19 was extended by Jerrell A. Shepherd, owner of KWIX-KRES FM, in Moverly.

Dowd and Bond have been asked to appear in a television debate and Shepherd said if they accepted his invitation, it would be the first radio debate by gubernatorial candidates.

Shepherd said he suggested each candidate speak 15 to 20 minutes then be permitted 10 minutes for rebuttal.

Sioux Battle Ground New National Monument

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Blocked by a Chinese veto of its application for U.N. membership, Bangladesh will attempt at the General Assembly this fall, debate to revive its flagging chances for admission.

China in an anticipated action Friday night cast the sole negative vote in the Security Council to prevent admission of Bangladesh.

Although 11 of the 15-member nations voted for the immediate entry of the former eastern region of Pakistan, a veto by one of the five permanent council members was sufficient to nullify the majority vote.

Bangladesh representatives let it be known in advance of the crucial vote that the situation was hopeless. But they said they would press in the three-month assembly session beginning Sept. 19 for the moral backing of the organization's 132 members.

The assembly cannot reverse a council decision. But an overwhelming expression of support in the assembly for Bangladesh's membership could result in a recommendation that the Security Council reconsider the matter.

Already in advance of Friday's council session, Yugoslavia asked that the assembly place on its agenda an item on "the admission of new members."

Natioal Poll Shows Most For Abortion

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A Gallup Poll says more Americans than ever before—64 per cent of the public—believe only a woman and her physician should decide whether she has an abortion.

Fifty-six per cent of the Catholics in the nationwide survey took the liberal stand on abortion despite their church's official opposition, the Gallup Organization reported Friday.

The poll, taken in June, also showed 73 per cent of Americans thought teen-agers should have access to professional birth control information, services and counseling. Favoring the position, also opposed by their church, were 68 per cent of the Catholics.

Previous Gallup Polls found the view that abortion is a doctor-patient decision favored by 57 per cent of Americans last January and by 40 per cent in November 1969.

The Democratic and Republican parties this summer both rejected platform planks declaring abortion a matter of conscience for every woman.

Gallup's survey of 1,574 adults 18 years and older found 68 per cent of the Republicans, 59 per cent of the Democrats and 67 per cent of the independent voters in favor of the liberal abortion stand. Sixty-four per cent of the women and 63 per cent of the men took the liberal view.

Ann Landers

Cooks Deserve Tips Too.....

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago I was still a teen-ager. Three years ago I was still a virgin. My lover dropped me for another girl whom he later married when her father offered him a nice job. Now when he runs into me at social functions he gives me a knowing wink.

What I remember most about our love affair was the constant fear of pregnancy. Like so many other stupid kids we had the idea that any attempt to prevent pregnancy made the relationship cheap and unnatural. (How crazy can you get?)

I now realize that virginity is a young woman's most precious gift. I am ashamed for having laughed at this concept and having considered it ridiculous and phony. My question is, shall I tell my wonderfully mature, highly-principled fiance about the past affair before we marry, or live in fear that the cad with the knowing wink will one day brag about his conquest and do me in? I hope you will answer. --- Ann Onimou

Dear Ann: If your fiance is "wonderfully mature and highly-principled" he won't ask. To volunteer such information would be stupid. Such confessions might be considered "good for the soul" or some people call it "clearing the air," but my mail tells me it can be a time bomb that might explode later and destroy a relationship.

Dear Ann Landers: As a cook (chef is the fashionable word these days) I was interested in the battle regarding tipping. I'm not saying the cook deserves to be tipped instead of the waitress, but I believe it would be fair to split it. After all, they need each other.

You expressed sympathy for the waitress who had to lift heavy trays. Do you have any idea what a huge pot of potatoes weighs? And those enormous roasted that must be lifted from the oven aren't exactly a bag of feathers.

During the summer months the waitresses have the benefit of air-conditioning while the cook is in the kitchen boiling with his soups and sauces. I've both jobs and I prefer cooking because it is more creative.

I'm off work now -- took a leave of absence to go on a diet. I've got to lose the 40 pounds I put on tasting and enjoying my own cooking. Which reminds me, Ann, tell your readers if they see a thin cook, don't eat in the restaurant. The food's not good because the cook doesn't care. --- Gertie The Gastronomist

Dear Gert: Thank you for letting us know what goes on behind those kitchen doors, and my compliments to the chef. But I'm afraid you are asking too much from the eating public if you expect them to take on a whole new layer of gratuities for service in the average restaurant. It is up to the staff to decide how the tips should be divided among themselves.

Dear Ann: I've got a touchy problem -- and I do mean touchy. It's my dad. He can't keep his hands off me.

I'm 18, the youngest in a family of five kids. My dad is forever dragging me on his lap when I watch TV, patting my backside when I'm walking past him, or kissing me hello and goodbye even if I'm just going to the grocery store.

I told Mom I didn't like it but she says, "You're his baby, be nice to him."

I don't want to hurt his feelings but I am not a baby and I wish he'd keep his hands off. ---Touchy Me

Dear T.M.: Personal messages are best delivered personally and not through a third party. Tell your dad how you feel about this. If you express yourself in a mature manner it might solve the problem -- somewhat.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lee Eddy

Eddy-Hunter

NEW MADRID — The Immaculate Conception Catholic Church was the setting August 19 for a nuptial mass at 2 p.m. uniting Miss Mary Catherine Hunter and Jerry Lee Eddy in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal E. Hunter Jr. and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eddy of New Madrid Route One.

The Rev. Father S. W. Bauer performed the double ring ceremony before an altar adorned with twin urns of yellow and apricot gladioli, white daisies and greenery backed with an arrangement of greenery. Matching arrangements were placed on each of the side altars. Lighted tapers lines the bridal aisle and the pews were marked with sprays of yellow and apricot gladioli and daisies secured with apricot ribbon bows.

Lee and Craig Hunter, brothers of the bride, served as acolytes.

Miss Eva Horton, organist, played a medley of selections and the processional and recessional. Miss Lora Hunter, sister of the bride, was vocalist. She sang "The Wedding Song" and "Together", which she composed. She and Freddie Copeland provided guitar accompaniment.

Escorted down the white carpeted aisle by her father, the bride wore a white formal gown of silk organza over taffeta. It was lavishly trimmed with imported French Chantilly lace. The bodice and mandarin collar were overlaid with lace, with the front richly sprinkled with jewels. The waistline was marked with a tiny double scalloped lace band. The lace trim extended onto the full, sheer bishop sleeves that ended with deep cuffs banded with lace. The demi-bell skirt was so richly trimmed with more of the lace motifs, and a deep band encircled the bottom of the skirt forming scallops all around. The full detachable train fell from the waist into a full chapel length. It was made of self fabric and was touched with more hand-clipped jeweled motifs. Her tiered elbow length veil of illusion was secured to a petal cap sprinkled with pearls.

She carried a colonial bouquet of white clustered daisies and baby's breath tied with white ribbons.

The bride chose Miss Betty Lou Gardner of New Madrid for her maid of honor. She wore an apricot organza formal gown flocked with white daisies over a taffeta underdress in the same shade. The skirt was softly gathered to the bodice featuring a standup collar and long full sleeves gathered to deep cuffs. Matching satin ribbon marked the empire waist.

Bridesmaids were Miss Terry Ann Hardin of Senath and Miss Deborah Kay McRaven of New Madrid. They wore identically styled apricot gowns over yellow taffeta underdresses. Headpeices for the attendants were a bandeau of pearl centered apricot daisies with streamers tipped with miniature daisies at the center back. Each carried colonial bouquets of yellow and apricot pom-poms interlaced with apricot ribbon.

The groom chose Robert M. Henrickson II of New Madrid as best man. Groomsmen were Stanley Hall of New Madrid and Joe Vann of Matthews. The men also served as ushers.

A reception, immediately following the ceremony, was held at the New Madrid Country Club. Serving the guests were Mrs. Hal E. Hunter III, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Frank Lamanna of Memphis, Tenn. and Miss Lora Hunter, both sisters of the bride, Mrs. Charles Lynn Eddy, sister-in-law of the groom, and Mrs. Linda LaValle, cousin of the bride.

After a trip to Kentucky Lake, the couple will live in a mobile home in Cabana Courts. The new Mrs. Eddy will teach English in New Madrid junior high school and Eddy will resume his studies at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

Parents of the groom were hosts for a rehearsal dinner on the eve of the wedding at the Bank of New Madrid community room. In addition to members of the wedding party, those attending were the Rev. Father Bauer, Mrs. Hal E. Hunter Sr., grandmother of the bride, and family members of the bride and groom.

Miss McRaven and her grandmother, Mrs. Richard Phillips Sr., were hostesses Aug. 18 for a bridesmaids' luncheon at the New Madrid Country Club. Also attending were mothers of the bride and groom, Miss Lora Hunter and Mrs. Hal E. Hunter III.

Rhode Island Has Answering Service For Sex

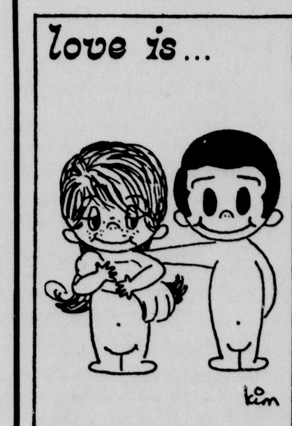

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A telephone service designed to help people solve their sexual problems is being expanded from a local effort to serve all of Rhode Island.

Sponsors of the Sex Information Service program announced the expansion Tuesday, saying they had received more than 250 calls for assistance since the program began June 12.

Sponsored by Child Family Services of Newport, a United Fund agency, the program handles anonymous questions about topics such as venereal disease, birth control, homosexuality and love-making. Questions are received by volunteers who are backed up by psychiatric social workers, gynecologists, psychiatrists and a clinical psychologist.

Although the service first was concentrated in Newport County, organizers said calls coming in from throughout the state indicated a wider interest.

"Generally speaking, the average caller is a married man between the ages of 25 and 45," said the coordinator of the program, Mrs. Jan Prochaska, a psychiatric social worker.

Frustration Is: Nulified TD Runs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Talk about frustration. No one would blame Charley Leigh of the Miami Dolphins if he kept mumbling to himself today.

Here's why: Leigh ran back a punt 52 yards for an apparent touchdown against the Atlanta Falcons in the second quarter Friday night. The play was nullified because of a penalty.

That was bad enough, but more woe was to come. Leigh took the kickoff starting the second half and ran it back 99 yards for another apparent touchdown. It, too, was nullified because of a penalty.

The long runs thrilled a capacity crowd of 75,372 at the Orange Bowl and the two callbacks didn't stop the Dolphins from whipping the Falcons 24-10 in their National Football League exhibition.

What was Leigh's reaction? He wasn't too disappointed.

"I didn't know either time there was a penalty until I got in the end zone and turned around," said the 26-year-old graduate of Albany, N.Y. High School signed as a free agent by the Dolphins last year.

The Detroit Lions exploded for 20 points in the second quarter and went on to whack the Washington Redskins 23-10 in the other scheduled NFL exhibition. It was the Redskins' first defeat in pre-season competition and came before 52,647 at Tiger Stadium and a national television audience.

Greg Landry threw an eightyard touchdown pass to Ted Vactor to start Detroit's second period explosion. Errol Mann kicked a field goal minutes later, then Landry and Steve Owens combined on a 50-yard pass-run play for another TD.

A 39-yard run by George Nock to the Detroit one set up Washington's score early in the second half. Sonny Jurgensen passed to Charlie Taylor for the TD. Thereafter Detroit's defense dominated.

The Lions put on a goal line stand on their seven in the last quarter that thwarted Washington's fading hopes.

Miami relied mainly on a ground attack to down the Falcons. The Dolphins rushed for 149 yards on 39 carries with Jim Kiick plunging for two touchdowns from two and 12 yards out in the second half.

Miami's first TD came on a 16-yard pass from Bob Griese to Paul Warfield. That gave the Dolphins a 10-0 lead before Leigh broke away for the first of his two futile long runs.

Five more exhibitions are scheduled today with four Sunday and one Monday night.

The New York Jets play at Dallas in a nationally televised game tonight. In the others, Minnesota is at Cleveland, San Diego at New Orleans, Pittsburgh takes on Baltimore at Tampa and Buffalo meets Oakland at Berkeley, Calif.

On Sunday, Denver is at San Francisco, the New York Giants at New England, Chicago takes on Green Bay at Milwaukee and Los Angeles plays at Kansas City in the third nationally televised game of the weekend. Cincinnati is at Philadelphia Monday night.

Rebuilding Year At SEMO

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Seventy-nine prospects have reported to Southeast Missouri State's football training camp to begin preparation for what head coach Tom Thrower labels as "a rebuilding year."

Southeast Missouri is missing 18 seniors who played a big part in last year's second place MIAA finish and 7-3-1 overall record. Included in that group of seniors were 12 starters.

On the other hand, the Tribe will feature 26 returning lettermen and a good selection of recruits who may be able to plug the holes left by graduation.

Thrower described his recruiting efforts as quite successful. However, two of his top prospects failed to show up and another is a question mark due to medical reasons.

Failing to report were defensive tackle John Rawls of Ocala, Fla., and split end Alonzo Love of St. Louis. Love earned All -State recognition at Vashon High School last year and was regarded by Thrower as possibly the best freshman prospect in the state.

Harold Dilworth, who earned All-Metro honors as a defensive end at Beaumont High School in St. Louis, has not yet passed his physical examination.

Thrower pointed out that he was quite pleased with the group which did report and noted "squad condition was excellent."

The biggest area of concern for the Indian coaching staff is the defense where only three starters return. Missing are such standouts as second team All-Conference selections Bill Brown of St. Louis, a defensive end, and linebackers Doug Mackey of Scotch Plains, N.J. and Gene Figge of Ste. Genevieve. Figge led the Indians in tackles three of his four seasons on the squad.

Fortunately for the Indians there is quality in the trio of defensive veterans from last year. Returning for their senior years are defensive end Steve Derringer of Webster Groves and cornerback Jim Powell, also of Webster Groves. Both claimed first team berths on last year's All-MIAA team.

The third returning defensive starter is David Means, a junior from Hopkinsville, Ky. The big tackel received second team all-conference honors last year.

Offensively the biggest losses were All-MIAA fullback Ed Moss of Poplar Bluff, who was drafted by the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League, and running back Art Miller of Kirkwood.

Also gone from last year's offensive starting unit is tight end Dennis Maxey and tackle Jack Huelskamp, both of St. Louis. Huelskamp received second team all-conference honors.

Highlighting the list of offensive starters from last year is senior Dan Peiffer of Harper, Iowa, who was a first team All-MIAA selection, and second team choices, junior center Rich Stewart of Hillsboro, Ill., and senior guard Gary Rohr of East St. Louis, Ill.

Also back is last year's number one quarterback Lance Brune, a junior from Cape Girardeau. John Gabrisch, a junior from Hazelwood, who saw some action last year when Brune was injured, is also slated to see a lot of action this year.

Among the top transfers in the Indian camp are Steve Rogers of Chaffee, who played a year at the University of Missouri, John Isom from Ellsworth, Iowa, Junior College, Bruce Bufford from Florissant Valley Junior College, and Cape Girardeau native Ben Johnson from Centerville, Iowa, Junior College.

Summing up the offensive prospects for the coming season, Thrower said, "We ought to be able to put one good offensive unit on the field, but we will have very little depth, as is always the case." Last year key injuries to offensive unit starters ruined Indian hopes for a big year.

The Indians began using full pads Monday night as they started the rough work which, Thrower says, "will teach them how to protect themselves again."

The first scrimmage of the pre-season was held Tuesday night and the second was scheduled Thursday night. A third will be Saturday at about 8 p.m. at Houck Stadium.

Thrower, in discussing the purpose of these scrimmages, said, "From them we find out who the young players are we should spend time training and how much the older players have improved."

The season opener will be Sept. 9 at Cleveland, Miss., against Delta State College.

The schedule:

Olympics Open

MUNICH (AP) — The rich old men who run the Olympics with concern for power, politics and prestige finally turned the 20th Summer Games over to the athletes in opening pomp Saturday after weeks of bitter wrangling.

Almost as if in mockery of the bickering, the first official sound of the Games was the mellow baritone mooing of alpine horns, the signal to start the opening ceremony. This was followed later by the rattle of old blunderbusses instead of the customary military cannon salute.

The 10,000 best young men and women athletes of 123 nations paraded in their team dress uniforms and a lithe, blond German runner lighted the Olympic flame.

But absent from the parade ranks were the 43 athletes of white - dominated Rhodesia, voted out of the games when the International Olympic Committee yielded to the clamor of black African nations to reverse an agreement made a year earlier.

Avery Brundage, retiring this year as president of the IOC, called this move sheer power politics that did violence to Olympic ideals.

Brundage sadly noted that it was the first time a vote had gone against him in 20 years as IOC president - so he mounted the rostrum to preside over his last Games on a note of defeat, rather than triumph.

But as the torch flared and the athletes paraded, the games turned again to what they are supposed to be - man - to- man competition for medals.

For 16 days they will run, jump and swim - and do scores of other strong, swift and agile things in pursuit of 195 gold medlas, the highest number ever to be awarded in Olympic competition. In all there will be 1,109 gold, silver and bronze medals.

The opening ceremony was a mixture of military precision, dedication to ideals and gestures of friendship carried out within sight of a hill built of Munich's heaped-up rubble from World War II.

West German president Gustav Heinemann, official sponosr of the Games, entered the stadium at 10 a.m., EDT, on the signal of eight alpine hornscurved wooden instruments about 20 feet long that emit a deep-throated tone used for calling from peak to valley to peak in the Alps, which rise within sight of Munich on a clear day.

A 60-man military band played the German national anthem as the throng of 80,000 - 45,000 seated, 35,000 standing - rose in the huge gray concrete stadium.

The teams entered to special music, a combination of tunes from various countries arranged in march time. The tunes included "When the Saints Go Marching In" for the United States, "Tiritomba" for the Italians and one called "Auf du Junger Wandersmann" - which translates roughly to "Get Up Young Wanderer" — for the Germans.

Phillies Have Record Setter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southpaw Ken Reynolds of the Philadelphia Phillies has lost 12 straight baseball games. No, that isn't a typographical error. That's 12, as in a dozen.

"I don't want to give up on him," said Manager Paul Owens after his pitcher dropped a 6-1 decision to the Cincinnati Reds Friday night to tie a team record for futility.

Reynolds, who hasn't won since last season, duplicated Russ Miller's unattractive mark of 1928 and continued to flirt with the National League and major league records.

The National League record for consecutive losses is 18, shared by Clifton Curtis of the 1910 Boston Braves and Roger Craig of the 1963 New York Mets. John Nabors set the major league record of 19 with the Philadelphia A's in 1916.

"I hope that Reynolds doesn't want to give up on himself," continued Owens. "With a little luck, and if we'd score some runs for him, he could easily be pitching .500 ball instead of being 0-12.

"He has a good attitude and I don't think he's discouraged. And I intend to keep him in our regular rotation. Next year, he could easily win 12, 13, or 14 for us."

Cincinnati improved on its strong first-place margin in the National League West as the second-place Houston Astros lost to the Montreal Expos 4-3 and fell nine games behind.

Elsewhere, the Pittsburgh Pirates split a doubleheader with the Los Angeles Dodgers, winning the first 3-2 in 12 innings and losing the second, 4-3. The Pirates boosted their front-running margin in the East to 12 games as second-place New York dropped a 2-1 decision to the Atlanta Braves.

The San Francisco Giants whipped the Chicago Cubs 11-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals split a pair with the San Diego Padres, winning the first game 7-4 and losing the second, 8-7.

American League scores: New York 4, Kansas City 1 in the first game of a doubleheader and Kansas City 5, New York 1 in the second; Boston 4, Texas 0; Baltimore 5, Oakland 3 and Cleveland 2, California 1 in 11 innings. Rain washed out two games—Chicago at Milwaukee and Detroit at Minnesota.

Reynolds had an unaccustomed 1-0 lead, but failed to hold it in the fourth inning as the Reds came up with five runs—two on opposing pitcher Don Gullett's single. Gullett, not incidentally, completed his first game of the year to make his record 6-7. He had been sidelined by hepatitis.

Relief pitcher Mike Marshall hit a ninth-inning double to score John Boccabella with the tie-breaking run, giving Montreal its triumph over Houston. The bullpen ace earned his 14th victory of the season.

"I would have settled for a single," Marshall said of his game-winner, his first extrabase hit at Montreal in three years.

Finals Set

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Hammond, Ind., and Taiwan play for the Little League Championship today, in a geographical matchup that almost duplicates the 1971 final.

Last year, a different Taiwan team drubbed Hammond's neighboring city, Gary, Ind., 12-3. And Many visiting newsmen, spectators and Little League officials feel the result could be similar this year.

Such predictions are based on opening round and semifinal games played earlier this week in which the Taiwan youngsters outscored the opposition 18-1.

In their opener last Wednesday, Taiwan shut out New City, N.Y., 9-0, and followed with a 9-1 semifinal victory Thursday over Pearl City, Hawaii.

Hammond, meanwhile, squeaked through the opening round with a 2-1 extra inning triumph over Vienna, Va. In Thursday's semifinal, the Indiana boys jumped to a 10- 2 lead over San Juan, P.R., then held on for a 10- 7 victory when the Latin Americans charged back in the late innings.

In a consolation game for third place today, San Juan, P.R. was scheduled to play Pearl City.

1973 Wheat Allotment Notices To Producers

Notices of 1973 wheat allotments and an official explanation of the 1973 wheat set-aside program have been mailed to producers in New Madrid County, according to Bernard Recker, chairman of the County Agricultural Stablization and Conservation (ASC) committee.

All participants will set-aside an acreage equal to 86 per cent of their farm domestic allotment, will earn wheat certificate payments based on their domestic allotment, and will be eligible for commodity credit corporation loans on wheat grown on participating farms.

An additional set-aside option also is offered, Recker said. Contingent upon their 1972 wheat acreage, producers may set-aside an additional acreage up to 150 per cent of their domestic wheat allotment in return for a payment of 88 cents a bushel times established yield times acres of additional set-aside.

A producer who accepts the additional set-aside option also agrees to limit his production of 1973 wheat. The limitation is determined by the formula: 1972 spring and winter wheat planted acreage on the farm plus any 1972 additional set-aside, minus the 1973 additional set-aside.

"The big point to make at this time is that a wheat grower in the 1973 wheat program can go one of two ways: One - maintain required set-aside and conserving base acreages with no limit on his wheat acreage. Two -- maintain required set-aside, additional set-aside, and conserving base acreages and limit his wheat acreage," the ASC committee chairman said. "He should check with the county ASCS office for full details."

A number of other important items are covered in the official explanation, including a reminder that 1973 is the year when a farmer who did not plant a program crop during the past two seasons can lose his allotment if he fails to plant for a third successive year.

Substitution provisions are spelled out. Soybeans, corn, grain sorghum and barley may be substituted for wheat to perserve allotment history.

"Then, too, I want to remind producers that set-aside acreage -- both the required and any additional set-aside -- must be of the same average quality as the other cropland on the farm," Recker said.

(Winter wheat areas should use the following paragraph, and all areas may use it: Producers may ask for set-aside inspection and measurement service from the county ASCS office in order to assure themselves well ahead of time that set-aside land is acceptable. This service is offered at cost.)

Allotment notices to wheat producers are sent several months before sign-up, at which time farmers given official notice of their intent to participate in the set-aside program and designate their set-aside acreage. The official sign-up period has not yet been announced.

Former Yankee pitcher Whitey Ford, who holds a number of World Series records, will be eligible to be voted into Baseball's Hall of Fame next January by 10-year members of the Baseball Writers' Association.

Farmers Got 41.1 Cents On Food Dollar In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in July received 41.1 cents from every dollar spent by consumers for food, the most in more than two years. But the lofty peak may not last long.

Higher market prices for hogs, frying chickens, eggs and some fresh vegetables helped boost the farm share of the consumer dollar from the 40.6 cents reported for June.

The farm share had not risen above 41 cents since early 1970, according to USDA records, and most of the time has been in the 36 to 40-cent range.

According to a report on retail "market basket" food costs issued Thursday, prices farmers received for the raw items rose three per cent from June. Cattle, however, failed to gain in average price for the month.

Cattle prices have slipped since their peak last month from around $40 per hundredweight at Omaha to less than $36 by mid-August. That points to a slippage in the farmer's ahre of the consumer food dollar when the August market basket is reported next month.

The market basket report, based on farm-produced items needed to feed a typical family for an entire year, showed retail grocery prices in July averaged 4.5 per cent higher than a year earlier and 1.8 per cent more than in June.

The so-called "farm value" of the market basket was reported up 11.9 per cent from a year earlier.

Based on July surveys, the entire market basket list cost $1,322 with farmers getting $544 and middlemen $778. In June, the basket cost $1,299 with farmers getting $528 and middlemen $771.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's turkey crop this year is expected to total 128.4 million birds, up seven per cent from 1971 and a record high, the Agriculture Department said.

Minnesota, the leading producer, is expected to raise 20.7 million birds, up 12 per cent from 18.4 million produced last year, the department said in a report.

Other major producing states and 1972 estimates included: California 17.5 million turkeys, up four per cent; North Carolina 12.4 million, up 22 per cent; and Missouri 10 million, up 15 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, in an attempt to curb further introduction of exotic Newcastle disease into U.S. poultry flocks, has banned all commercial imports of live pet and exotic birds.

The ban, effective on Thursday, applies to such birds as finches, canaries, parakeets, parrots and mynahs. It will remain in effect until it can show imports of birds will be free of Newcastle, officials said.

An exotic form of Newcastle disease, now said to be under control, wiped out some 3.9 million poultry and other birds, including those destroyed under quarantine actions. Most of the losses occurred in Southern California.

Alfalfa Could Profit Livestock

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

Alfalfa is a real special crop but not so special that you need to put off starting a field if it can fill a gap in your rougage program. A highly productive stand of alfalfa may fit into your livestock operations quite profitably.

Alfalfa can be grown on soils moderate to good in drainage if the soil test requirements for lime, phosphate and potash are met. Generally, alfalfa will produce 4 to 6 tons per acre on most good cotton or corn soil in Southeast Missouri. This means that most farmers who need an increased tonnage of hay for livestock or income should seriously consider alfalfa to produce much of this increase. Alfalfa is also an excellent rotation crop. High quality alfalfa hay is always in demand in this area by people who own horses.

For early growth, more winter hardy plants and better survival from weevil damage, seed alfalfa by September 10 in a moist seedbed. This means you will need to get busy right away. Get a soil sample to determine lime and fertilizer needs. Apply the recommended limestone, phosphate and potaxh before plowing. These should be plowed under when land is being prepared. Limestone is especially important to supply calcium and raise the pH to 6.5 to 7.0 in order for the legume bacteria to have a good medium to work in.

A firm seedbed is essential. Frequent light disking and harrowing will help. A corrugated roller or cultipacker is especailly useful in seedbed preparation. A good test of a firm seedbed is whether a tractor will leave no more than tread marks.

Plant certified seed of recommended varieties. Certification of seed insures varietal purity and identity. You know you are getting the variety and quality of alfalfa seed you want when the bag is sealed with a certified tag. Vernal, Buffalo, Ranger, Cody and Culver are most highly recommended for all parts of Missouri. They are resistant to bacterial wilt, winter- hardy and high in yield. Buffalo tends to grow later in the fall than Ranger and may have a slightly better adaptation to Southeast Missouri than Vernal or Ranger.

Inoculate your seed, or if you buy preinoculated seed, check on the method of application and expiration date to assure yourself of live inoculation bacteria. For a good start, use a starter fertilizer containing 25 to 30 pounds of nitrogen, 60 pounds phosphate and 25 to 30 pounds of potash per acre. Seed 15 pounds of seed per acre. Plant seeds not more than 1/2 inch deep, with the soil firmed around the seed to prevent drying out of the seedlings. Band seeding or broadcasting and covering with a corrugated roller are preferred methods. On seedbeds well prepared on plowed ground, 6-10 vigorous plants will remain and produce 6 tons or more per acre.

Alfalfa plants must be fed annually to stay healthy and productive. Poor nutrition means thin stands, weak plants and low yields. A good plan is to topdress alfalfa stands in the fall of the first hay year and each succeeding year. Fall topdressing usually works best because soils are drier than in spring and permit use of heavy spreading equipment. Either fall or after the first clipping are excellent times. Follow soil test recommendations for annual topdressing. It is well to apply annually 40 to 120 lbs. of phosphate, 120 to 240 lbs. of potash and 2 to 3 pounds of boron in mixed fertilizers.

Early cutting weakens the plants and late cutting gives lower quality hay. Cut at 1/10 bloom stage or when the new shoots start emergence from the crown. Last cutting should leave time for 8 inches of recovery growth before winter.

Milk Up 11¢ From Year Ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk prices paid producers in early August averaged $7.21 per hundredweight for Class I or bottling type, the same as in July but 11 cents more than a year earlier, says the Agriculture Department.

The department said retail prices for milk in major cities averaged 58.4 cents per onehalf gallon, up 0.2 cents from July and 0.4 from a year earlier.

Home-delivered milk averaged 68.5 cents per half gallon in the cities, the same as in July but 1 cent more than in August last year.

Campers Help Spread Moths

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says campers are helping spread gypsy moths from the infested areas of the northeast into other parts of the country.

A survey of 7,000 "recreational vehicles" leaving the northeast disclosed 68 carried gypsy moths.

"These tree-defoliating pests attach themselves to anything temporarily stationary, such as camping equipment and vehicles," officials said.

One mature gypsy moth caterpillar can eat up to one square foot of leaf area in a single day.

Idled Cropland Earns $2 Million

Scott County farmers earned over $2 million during 1971 on 48,809 acres of idled croplands.

Total figures represent set aside lands for cotton, wheat and feed grains.

According to Agricultural Stablilzation Conservation Service figures released by 10th District Congressman Bill D. Burlison, a total of 29,836 acres were set aside by feed- grain farmers, who earned $778,721 for the idled croplands. A total of $500,452 was paid for setting aside 7,659 acres of wheat land and $794,063 was paid for setting aside 11,314 acres of cotton.

Cotton Use To Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cotton use for domestic textile making and export sales is expected to increase, but a 25-percent larger crop will add some to surplus, says the Agriculture Department.

The cotton crop as of Aug. 1 was forecast at about 13.3 million bales. The department says total use during the 1972-73 season may exceed last season's 11.25 million bales, thus adding to the carry-over a year from now.

Cotton reserves going into the new-crop year which began Aug. 1 totaled about 3.3 million bales, the lowest in many years. Next year, if use turns out as expected, the stockpile could be built back up to around 4.75 million.

The projections were included in a summary of the cotton situation. The full report will be available later this month officials said.

First public recitation of the famous poem, "Casey at the Bat," was given by De-Wolf Hopper at Wallack's Theater, New York City, May 1, 1888.

Quality Set-Aside Strengthened for '73

Because payment deductions for less- than-average- quality set- aside land are being increased for the 1973 programs, producers can be better assured of equitable application of set- aside provisions in the 1973 wheat, feed grain, and cotton programs, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced.

For wheat and feed grain farms, when low- quality acreage is offered for set- aside -- that is acreage not representative of land on which the farm's crops are grown -- the entire payment will be based on the productivity of the set- aside land.

For cotton, the deduction rate will be comparable on a per- acre of set- aside to that applicable to wheat and feed grain set- aside. This announcement was made as a result of a study of 1971-72 program operations which revealed that a few producers with farms having both poor-quality and quality cropland have offered the poor- quality for set- aside and accepted deductions from their farm payments. The deductions were not enough to offset the monetary advantage gained by producing crops on the quality acreage rather than setting it aside from production.

The great majority of participants in thee set- aside programs have offered quality set- aside acreages in both 1971 and 1972, and the increased deduction rates for 1973 will affect relatively few producers.

In both 1971 and 1972, quality of set- aside has been emphasized, with a requirement that set- aside acreage be representative of cropland acreage on a participating farm. Deductions of set- aside payments are made in cases where set- aside land is not representative.

County ASCS offices will make available set- aside inspection and measurement service to 1973 program participants. This service, which is offered at cost, can provide assurance to farmers that their set- aside acreage is acceptable for quality and quantity. The set- aside inspection service was first offered in 1972. It is available now to any farmer who wants an early determination and will continue as long as needed.

Set- aside land representative of cropland on which crops are normally produced is needed to assure achievement of effective production adjustment, according to officials of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service which administers set-aside programs.

Under the Agricultural Act of 1970, participating wheat, feed grains, and cotton producers set- aside a percentage of their cropland, diverting it into conserving uses, and generally are free to produce as they choose on their remaining cropland. Under this program more decision - making has been returned to farmers. The program provides freedom to plant crops which are to their economic advantage. This has enabled them to make the most efficient use of their land, labor and machinery and has resulted in increased farm income.

The recently announced 1973 wheat program offers wheat farmers an even greater degree of flexibility in planning their 1973 cropping operations. They will have the added choice of voluntarily setting aside additional acreage for payment and agreeing to limit 1973 wheat acreage or of setting aside only the minimum acreage without restrictions on their wheat planting.

An unexpected child can really rock the cradle.

Don't get us wrong.
We think children are priceless, too.
But if a child happens to be unplanned, it could mean financial pressures.
You see, a child is not just an extra mouth to feed. It's a whole other life to be provided for.
And that takes money.
Fact is, the cost to raise a child to age 18 ran around $25,000 (more for some, less for others, dependent on family income) in the mid-60's. And what inflation will do to the cost in the future is anybody's guess!
But no matter what the amount is, it's easy to see that the cost of rearing children is an economic reality one can't ignore. That is, if each child is to get what he or she deserves.
Which is why we advise every couple to plan how many children they want. And when they want them: when they can be a welcome addition rather than an accidental burden.
Because, as we all know, it's awfully hard to give with a full heart when one's pockets are empty.

Pemiscot Hospital Taxes To Be Cut

HAYTI — Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital officials revealed the hospital board of trustees has recommended to the county court a 25 per cent reduction in the tax rate. The tax rate which has been 20 cents per $100 assessed property valuation will be reduced to 15 cents per $100 valuation.

The county court has said it will accept the board's recommendation and reduce the tax rate later this month.

In a letter to the court from Julian Boyd, hospital board president, he explained the reduction was asked "because the financial status of the hospital at the present time is adequate and will not in any way affect the operation of the hospital in 1973."

Jack Tipton, hospital administrator, said several factors had made the tax cut possible, including better collection on all accounts and a better acceptance of the hospital by area residents.

"The costs to operate remain fairly constant and if the beds are filled the hospital has more income to meet these expenses," he said. He also cited the fact more people carry insurance, assuring the hospital will collect more accounts through the insurance companies.

Tipton said the hospital has 52 per cent private patients compared to 48 per cent Medicare- Medicaid patients. He said Medicaid-Medicare pays 84 per cent of actual hospital costs.

He mentioned the salary percentage has steadily dropped since 1967 except for the last year but operating costs have soared. Even with this, he said, a cut in the tax rate was possible.

Operating cost for the hospital last year was $1,817,762, compared to $859,207 in 1967. Tipton also expressed confidence that the new million- dollar nursing home now under construction would be able to pay for itself and not be a drain on the hospital's finances.

Eight were treated Friday as accident patients in the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Poplar Bluff To Vote Tuesday On Sewer Bonds

POPLAR BLUFF — Poplar Bluff voters go to the polls Tuesday in a special election to accept or reject municipal bonds in the amount of $450,000 for sewer expansion in the northwest section of the city.

The bonds, which require a two-thirds majority for passage, will be used to finance the city's share of the $875,000 project to provide sewers to an area of the city which was annexed more than eight years ago.

If the bonds are approved, the city is expected to receive $425,000 in state and federal funds to pay for the remainder of the project. The general obligation bonds will be retired through existing tax devisions of the city without an increase in the tax levy, official said.

The sewer issue previously failed when tax increases were required to finance it, but now matching government funds will make it possible to finance the project without a local tax increase.

St. Louis police were investigating the blast in the light of the Feb. 24 shooting death of Edward Steska, Business of Pipefitters Local 562 in St. Louis.

Shoulders, who was on Local 562's payroll as a "security guard" was questioned by police in the Steska murder—the investigation of which has turned up no arrests.

Local police remained tightlipped about any firm connection between the two deaths.

Shoulders, 44, was the son of a one-time St. Louis police lieutenant who served a prison term for perjury in the 1953 kidnaping of Bobby Greenlease of Kansas City. Only half of the $600,000 ransom was recovered when the kidnapers of the boy were arrested here.

Shoulders, who was arrested 20 times on charges ranging from speeding to suspicion of murder between 1954 and 1958, was indicted by a Madison County, Ill., grand jury in connection with the murder of Bobby G. Carr, a taxi driver, but the case never came to trial.

He was convicted and sentenced to six years in federal prison in 1959 for interstate theft and harboring a fugitive from justice and again in 1971 for violating the federal firearms act. His two year conviction on the latter charge was later set aside by the U.S. Supreme Court on grounds the government had failed to show that Shoulders handled a gun in interstate commerce.

Police were unable to question Harvill, whose brother George was shot to death in Caseyville, ill., in 1966.

A woman who had accompanied Shoulders to the lake was being held by Taney County authorities Friday night at the Branson city jail. Police would not identify the woman, saying she was being held in protective custody.

Q. I was wondering if the movie "Duel in the Sun," with Gregory Peck and Jennifer Jones, has ever been released for TV. This is one of the favorite movies from my childhood and I'm dying to see it again. Will it be on TV soon? — Mrs. T. L., Paterson, N.J.

A. "Duel in the Sun" has been available for TV showings for some years now and ABC gave it network exposure last January.

Q. I have a suspicion that there was a TV show about doctors on some years back with Peter Graves. Am I correct? I also think that the actor who plays the older Darrell brother in the lawyers' part of "The Bold Ones" was in the show. —Mrs. H.M., Charleston, W. Va.

What You Want To Know

A. Peter Graves did not play a doctor in any of his TV series. However, Joe Campanella, who plays James Farentino's brother in "The Bold Ones," did play a doctor in a CBS series titled "The Doctors and the Nurses." Campanella's co-stars in the medic series were Shirl Conway, Zina Bethune, Stephen Brooks and Michael Tolan.

Q. I used to adore "The Beverly Hillbillies" TV show and I recently saw and interview with Irene Ryan, who used to play Granny, and she indicated that she made a fortune or nearly so from the show. Is this true? —G.M., Millinocket, Me.

A. Irene Ryan and Buddy Ebsen did very well from their association with "The Beverly Hillbillies." Not all their money came from their salaries from the show...they made many personal appearances at rodeos and such, and this, plus their take from the show's international sales, put them in a comfortable income bracket.

Q. Is it too late to get a picture of Fess Parker as Daniel Boone? I really need such a photo. L.V.S., Memphis, Tenn.

A. We can't promise you success...but try the Publicity Dept. of 20th Century-Fox TV, West Pico Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.

Q. I heard that "Brian's Song," the superb Movie of the Week, was going to be released to movie theaters. I would pay to see it again, that's how much I enjoyed it. Is the release to theaters on the level? —P.A., Dundee, Miss.

A. "Brians's Song" was released in a Chicago theater and did very well and now Columbia may release it in other cities. The only other TV film which was released in a similar fashion was the award-winning "My Sweet Charlie," which starred Patty Duke and Al Freeman Jr.

Q. What was the name of the TV series in which Ross Martin first appeared? It wasn't the last one in which he played opposite Robert Conrad. I can't recall the name of the series even though I used to watch it pretty regularly. —M.S., Bridgeport, Conn.

A. Ross Martin was featured in the "Mr. Lucky" TV series. He had co-starring billing in "The Wild, Wild, West" with Robert Conrad

q. Vera Miles is my favorite mature actress on TV and my favorite young actor is John Rubinstein. A friend of mine said they appeared together in a TV film. What was it and will it be on again? —W.J., Memphis, Tenn.

A. Miss Miles and John Rubinstein appeared with Barbara Eden and Larry Hagman in the NBC World Premiere film, "A Howling in the Woods." It will probably be repeated during the rerun season.

Q. Who were the stars of a movie titled "Woman of Straw"? I say it was Sophia Loren and a sexy guy but my sister-in-law says I'm wrong. —C.L., Argonia, Kans.

A. "Woman of Straw" starred Sean Connery, Gina Lollobrigida and Ralph Richardson.

Q. This past September, we vacationed in Hawaii and we had the greatest time seeing Don Ho and his show. Tell us, has Don Ho ever starred in a Tv series? — Mrs. R.M., Wichita

A. The popular Hawaiian performer starred in a summer TV series on NBC some years back, and he has been a frequent guest star on many variety shows.

Q. Is Jack Webb the producer of "The D.A." which stars Robert Conrad? The show has all the same touches as "Adam-12" and "Dragnet." Also, is Robert Conrad related to William Conrad of "Cannon"? They don't look anything alike but I was wondering.—Mrs. T.G., Arcadia, Fla.

A. Jack Webb produces both law and order TV series, "The D.A." and "Adam-12." The two Conrads, William and Robert, are not related.

CBS REPORTS:

"THE MEXICAN CONNECTION"

WIDELY PRAISED ACCOUNT OF ILLICIT MEXICO-U.S. DRUG TRAFFIC TO BE REBROADCAST AUG. 30

CBS REPORTS: "The Mexican Connection," the widely praised, first-person account of the trafficking of an estimated $1-billion-a-year- in illicit drugs between Mexico and the United States, will be rebroadcast Wednesday, Aug. 30 (7:00 — 8:00 PM) on the CBS Television Network. (This CBS News broadcast was originally presented on the Network on June 25, 1972.)

CBS News producer Jay McMullen, the reporter on the broadcast, spent eight months in Mexico examining the intricate workins of the air smuggling operation -- the major problem in coping with the flow of drugs across the border, according to U.S. law enforcement officials.

McMullen looks at those who control the operations, how they are run, why they are so successful and what devices the Mexican and American governments are implementing to bring a halt to the traffic.

Following its initial broadcast, "The Mexican Connection" was praised by editors in the nation's press as "a revealing documentary" (New York Post); "...an absorbing broadcast" (Worcester, Mass., Evening Gazette); "...worthy of a Hollywood thriller" (The New York Times); "an excellent job of reporting" (Pittsburgh Post Gazette); and "an assignment (carried off) in the grand old tradition of the news business" (Columbus Citizen-Journal).

The CBS REPORTS broadcast provides an in-depth examination of how the air smuggling organizations function – from the cultivation of marijuana and opium poppy fields to the shipment of the drugs. There are also first-hand accounts from those directly involved in the operations -- pilots, financial backers, distributors and buyers.

According the McMullen, air smuggling operations burgeoned with the increase in production and availability of Mexican marijuana and opium -- operations which are highly organized and linked together on a nationwide basis.

"With the development of intricate flight plans which often utilize treacherous air routes to avoid radar detection, the drugs are brought into this country with relative ease, causing major problems for U.S. Customs officials," McMullen said.

Burton Benjamin was executive producer of CBS REPORTS: "The Mexican Connection."

"DR. SEUSS" HORTON HEARS A WHO"...

NO "KRATUNKULOUSITY" IN THE DR. SEUSS MENAGERIE

Wungs, Ooblecks, Grinches, Sneeches, Nizzards and Whos may pose certain problems for the producer-director of their television specials. But they are a joy to work with in one respect. These "stars" of the popular Dr. Seuss stories, in spite of their unique proportions, which demand specialized wardrobes, their peculiar vocabulary and their unusual ways, are never "kratunkulous," a Seussian word meaning temperamental.

"If one of our actors gives us any trouble, we just reach for an eraser," syas Chuck Jones, director and co-producer, with Theodor (Dr. Seuss) Geisel, of "Dr. Seuss' Horton Hears a Who," Peabody Awardwinning enimated special to be rebroadcast on the CBS Television Network Thursday, Aug. 31 (7:30 - 8:00 PM).

Horton, the rhyme-scheming elephant whose actions in support of his belief that "a person's a person no matter how small" have won him friends large and small all over the world, is no exception to the "kratunkulous" rule. The only problem he causes is the result of his wavy, fluffy ears and foot-long eyelashes.

Bringing the imaginative Seuss creations, including a big hearted pachyderm, to life is not only a challenge to Jones but an elephantine responsibility.

"Millions of youngsters all over the world are on intimate terms with these fantastic creatures that exist nowhere but in the fertile imagination of their creator," explains Jones. "In bringing them alive through the animation process, one wrong expression or one missing detail could bring an army of enraged kids down on our heads."

The problem of incurring the "kratunkulousity" of little readers everywhere is compounded by the fact that Jones' famous partner, Geisel, has an uninhibited way of sketching his characters, often varying them in his books from page to page.

But the animation director and the artist-writer, who claims he "never learned to draw" and is "really just a doodler," have reached an artistic compromise in their tandem translation of the original Dr. Suess "doodle drawings" to the animation board.

Jones refines the character, be it Sneetch, Snumm, Nerkle or fluffy-eared elephant, to the two men's mutual satisfaction before the key drawing is turned over to the animators.

And the actors never have a word to say about how they look.

FIRE HEAVILY DAMAGED the Elks Club on South Main early this morning. The fire started in the bar room.

Fire Damages Elks Club Here

Fire of unknown origin did extensive damage to the Elks Club on South Main early this morning.

Firemen said the fire began in a wall in the back barroom. Flames were confined to the room, but there was extensive smoke damage throughout the rest of the club.

Firemen were called at 3:10 a.m. and fought the fire until 4:50 a.m. Fire officials were checking the possibility of a fire being accidently set off in a trash can.

Melvin Cokenour, exalted ruler of the Elks, said future engagements at the club are cancelled until further notice.

102 Killed In SeMo Accidents This Year

Troop E of the highway patrol reports the total number of highway fatalities to date is 102, compared to 100 during the same period in 1971.

There were five accidents Friday in the Bootheel, resulting in injuries to 11 persons.

Area mishaps include a car-pedestrian accident at 6:50 p.m. on Route A in Wardell. Three-year-old William Edmonds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willaim Edmonds, was struck by a car when he darted onto the roadway from behind another vehicle. Driver of the car which struck the child was Muriel Buchanan, 47, or Wardell. The child was hospitalized in Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti with serious injuries.

A three-car collision at 5:30 p.m. on Route M near Scott City resulted in injuries to two persons. Drivers of the cars were David Lee Simms, 29, of Chaffee, Brenda Foster, 21, of Chaffee and Jack Warren Sinch, 26, of Illmo Route One. The Foster car made a left turn in front of the Sims car, which in turn was knocked into the Sinch vehicle. The Foster woman was slightly injured and a passenger in the Simms car, Leona Marie Price, 34, of Chaffee sustained a head injury. Both were taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

3 Bound Over

Three persons were ordered held for Circuit Court trial in hearings Thursday in Stoddard County magistrate Court.

George White and Larry Boner were bound over for trial on burglary charges and Edwin Leroy Crews, 46, Harrisonville, was bound over on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

U.S. Jets Bomb Near China Line

SAIGON (AP) — American jets swept to within 35 miles of the Chinese border Friday and smashed four bridges on the northeast railroad supplying North Vietnam from China, the U.S. Air Force announced today.

North Vietnamese antiaircraft guns downed an F4 Phantom flying fighter escort for the bomb attack but its two crewmen—two of the leading U.S. combat pilots in Vietnam— bailed out over the sea and were rescued in minutes.

Capt. Jess S. Feinstein, 27, East Troy, Wis., and Lt. Col. Carl G. Baily, 41, Denver, Colo., managed to ride their crippled plane north and east over the sea before bailing out, the Air Force said. A helicopter from Da Nang Air Base picked them up 20 minutes later.

Feinstein has been credited with four MIG kills, one short of becoming the Air Force's first Vietnam ace. Baily has been credited with downing two MIGs. The pilots fly protective escort missions for the fighter bombers attacking targets on the ground.

The bridges that were knocked out had been attacked several times previously but had been rebuilt, the Air Force said. In the latest raid, three were reported destroyed while a fourth had its approach cratered.

Three Federal Aqencies Probe Death

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The explosion-murder of Louis D. Shoulders, Jr., ex-convict and St. Louis union figure, was under investigation by at least three federal agencies as well as St. Louis police, Taney County sheriff's deputies and Missouri Highway patrolmen late Friday.

Shoulders, who was among those subpoenaed before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee in 1958 during hearings in St. Louis, was killed early Friday and a companion, T. J. Harvill, seriously injured, when Shoulders' 1972 Cadillac was torn to shreds by a bomb blast after a night of fishing on Table Rock Lake near Branson, Mo.

A Taney County sheriff's deputy said there was a "strong smell of nitrate similar to gunpowder" in the air when he arrived at the scene at the Long Creek boat dock, where Shoulders and Harvill had moored their boat after a night of fishing.

Highway Patrol investigators said the bomb apparently had been placed under the driver's seat.

Taney County Sheriff Lyman Cardwell said it was Shoulders' custom to go fishing about 10 p.m. and return between 1 and 2 a.m.

Harvill, 49 and head of the Eastern Missouri Laborers District Council, was listed in serious condition Friday night at the Cox Medical Center in Springfield, where he underwent surgery earlier.

WHO PAYS FOR MERGERS?

When American Airlines took over Trans Caribbean Airways two years ago, it laid off 81 of 185 flight crew employees on Trans Caribbean. It then arranged for the 104 other employees to be transferred to lower-paying jobs. The check pilot for Trans Caribbean, for example, ended up as an engineer on American, though he is extremely well qualified. He was formerly a test pilot at Boeing, and a captain on Consolidated.

He is just one of the 104 who were demoted. His pay was cut 60 percent, and his pension in eight years will be $500 a month less than it would have been.

The President and Board Chairman of American Airlines wrote a letter on March 30, 1970 to all the employees, promising that no one would suffer a loss in pay as a result of the merger. The letter was also signed by the President and Board Chairman of Trans Caribbean. Apparently they had no intention of keeping their word.

A businessman's word should be his bond. It still is to most businessmen. But in our day of giant mergers, the individuals sometimes get forgotten. "Our passengers get the best of everything," claims American Airlines on its Timetable. How about justice for its pilots and their crews? Contented pilots make the best ones.

KENNEDY CENTER ANNIVERSARY

A year ago, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts was the target of widespread condemnation, acclaim and hope. Critics from the ranks of Vice President Agnew's "effete corps of impudent snobs" called the center an unimaginative, overdone architectural monstrosity without class or beauty. Others praised it as a grand and living memorial to a martyred President. Art lovers hoped that it would serve as an inspiration for a cultural renaissance throughout the country.

After almost 12 months of operation, the Kennedy Center has become a Washington institution, praised or criticized not so much for its appearance as for the kind of entertainment it has brought to the nation's capital. On Wednesday, Aug. 30, the center will launch its second season with a 12-day music festival called "The Old and The New." The 32 concerts, 10 of them free, will feature the works of 70 composers -- from Claude Debussy to John Cage and Elliott Carter.

In late March, Kennedy Center Chairman Roger L. Stevens claimed a Washington Convention and Visitor's Bureau survey had shown that, "The Kennedy Center is the most popular tourist attraction in the country next to Disneyland." A center spokesman told Editorial Research Reports that between its opening on Sept. 8, 1971, and the end of July 1972, more than 2 million visitors had toured the center and another 1.6 million had attended performances. During that same period, an estimated 3.5 million tourists visited nearby Arlington National Cemetery.

One of the major problems of the Kennedy Center is money. Building costs exceeded $72 million, of which $4.5 million still remains to be paid. In the early months of operation, acts of vandalism were common and many of the expensive fixtures which were stolen have not been replaced. Until Congress agreed to a $1.5 million authorization on June 7, it was feared that tourists would be required to pay an admission fee to meet the center's maintenance and security expenses.

Complaints of financial mismanagement persist. In a report made public Aug. 15, the U.S. General Accounting Office charged that faulty budgeting and accounting procedures had led to fiscal chaos at the center. Stevens retorted that the report had been based "largely [on] past history" and that "There have been sweeping changes in personnel and audit procedures." All in all, it seems that the Kennedy Center's second season almost certainly will be more cost- conscious than the first.

FIGHTING FOR A BEACHHEAD

City residents long have felt antipathy toward suburbanites who flock into town to enjoy parks, zoos and museums without making any contribution to them as taxpayers. But this resentment is minor compared to the wrath generated on both sides of the controversy over city dwellers' access to beaches which increasingly are restricted by the laws and regulations of suburban townships and counties.

The common restrictive device is for suburban seashore communities to give residents use of their beach free or for a nominal charge, while gouging visitors with a fee that chills the desire for a day in the sun and sand. Some communities, particularly in the crowded Northeast from Connecticut's Fairfield County down to the resort towns of southern New Jersey, simply bar visitors altogether.

The practice of restricting beach use started slowly in the 1950s and grew rapidly. But recently the courts have begun coming down on the side of public access. Last year the owners of expensive beach houses at Malibu, near Los Angeles, lost the right to block public access to the shore. In March a New York Supreme court justice struck down a 1970 law restricting the Long Beach, N.Y., beach to residents and their guests. The court said the beach, which had been built on borrowed state and federal funds and was public for 35 years, was part of an irrevocable public trust.

The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled last July 24 that even the modest $10 a month charged for a non-resident beach pass by the town of Avon- by- the- Sea violated the public trust principle. Beach restriction advocates are still not giving up. At Compo Beach in Westport, Conn., which is without public transportation and is ringed by no- parking signs, a visitor can get into the beach parking lot -- for a fee of $15. a visit.

It is time to stand up for freedom."

TENNIS FEVER

Tennis once was quite literally the sport of kings, but today it is the pastime of millions from all walks of life. It is estimated that there are around 11.5 million tennis players in the United States at present -- nearly double the number of a decade ago. As Sophy Burnham recently noted in Saturday Review (July 29, 1972), "Tennis has become democratized, professionalized, cheap, year- round, all- weather, all-hours – and to all appearances, the nation's fastest-growing sport." As further evidence of the tennis boom, Life points out (Aug. 11, 1972) that, "Now there are 100,000 U.S. courts and 5,000 new ones being added each year."

The 1972 tennis season is nearing its peak. The U.S. Lawn Tennis Association Championships will get under way at Forest Hills, N.Y., on Friday, Sept. 1. And sometime in October, the United States will meet Rumania in Bucharest in the Davis Cup finals. Meanwhile, tennis fans are following the progress of two budding superstars, America's Chris Evert and Australia's Evonne Goolagong, who divided the only two matches they have played against each other to date. "Their rivalry surely will grow into one of the finest in tennis history," Bill Nichols predicted (Aug. 12, 1972) in The Sporting News.

The current surge of interest in tennis stands in sharp contrast to the low opinion in which it formerly was held in this country. The Encyclopedia of Sports observes that tennis was long regarded "as 'a girl's game' and was subjected ... to masculine ridicule because 'love" is one of the scoring terms used in the sport. No other game was treated with so much indifference and to so many slurs."

For many years tennis also was regarded, and rightly so, as a game played almost exclusively by the well- to- do. Posh tennis clubs still exist and are flourishing. But now the sport has invaded the ghetto as well as the suburbs. A major attraction is the fact that the only equipment needed is a racquet, a ball, and a pair of sneakers. These days, a person who asks that hoary old question, "Tennis, anyone?" will find plenty of takers.

The most important element in advertising is not the cost, but the results obtained.

Advertisers have acquired the concept of three dimensions in selling. Space is only the first dimension in selling. When a businessman realizes gains through advertising he is very likely to increase its use.

Some advertisers are even smarter. For instance, one may say, "I want to buy people, not just time and space." He then proceeds to base his advertising expenditures on the concept of "people- space." He is mrely likely to pull through hard times than his faint-hearted competitors who don't see this second dimension.

However, space and people are not enough for the thriving advertiser. He sees also a third dimension -- the depth to which his message penetrates. By advertising in the right medium he can reach a maximum market.

Most retailers have learned that the best medium for retail sales is the local newspaper. Since "all sales are local," the advertiser can reach nearly all of his customers anytime, anywhere in the newspaper which covers the local community.

The newspaper provides deep penetration. Consumers like to know exact conditions of purchase. They are likely to spend more time reading their local newspaper than any other medium available to get complete shopping information.

Newspapers don't operate just to sell on one dimension. They co-ordinate all sales' dimensions for the local market.

A TOUGH PROPOSITION

A lot of appliances, gadgets and automobiles appear to have less durability built into them than they did a few years ago. But appearances can be deceiving. If automobiles performed as they did 30 or 40 years ago, today's freeways would be a nightmare of clogged traffic. There was a time when every auto carried three or four spare tires. A blow out was a normal occurrence just as was mechanical failure. Millions of autos now travel the expressways during rush hours, and rarely is the traffic flow slowed by a breakdown.

The chairman of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, Inc., Mr. Elisha Gray offers one reason why U. S. consumers are dissatisfied with business. "Simply stated", he says, "their expectations have been raised to unprecedented levels -- which business often cannot fulfill." Mass production of foolproof, trouble-free, highly-complicated machines and appliances for mass use – at prices people can pay -- is a mighty tough proposition. It is also one that U. S. enterprise has tackled with a remarkable degree of success.

OFF BEAT'S ODE of the Week, penned by a staffer who, worried about fitting the names of the winners of Tuesday's gubernatorial balloting into headlines, was pleased to find both candidates with short monikers — although now he wonders if this fortells of a mud - slinging contest by November:

"Already printed it!" the caller moaned. "Well, if the publicity's over, then I don't want to contribute."

THE CLARK REPORT

Ramsey Clark, former attorney general in the Lyndon B. Johnson administration, has been in the enemy capital of Hanoi and he wails about the damage of United States bombing. Mr. Clark contends that dikes have been blasted and schools, homes and hospitals destroyed. In substance, the former attorney general is saying that his country is wrong in bringing the war home to the communists of North Vietnam.

He does not mention the all-out assaults launced by the North Vietnamese into the sovereign territory of South Vietnam nor the destruction of its villages and the slaughter of the South Vietnamese people. He ignores our commitment to the people and government of South Vietnam, a pledge that was made by the administration he served as attorney general.

Radio Hanoi has made the most of Clark's statements, using them in skillful worldwide propaganda. His statements have damaged our cause in the capitals of other nations and they have widened the split among our own people who want to see the Vietnamese war pressed to an honorable conclusion. The utterances of actress Jane Fonda have had a similar effect but they don't sound as authoritative as those of a former member of a President's cabinet.

It is to be hoped that the Hanoi broadcasts of Clark will not deter us from pursuing the goal of making South Vietnam a free and independent nation. Abandoning that goal would give communist invaders everywhere a green light. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON - - President Nixon has made a strong pitch for Catholic votes this fall by supporting tax credits for parents of parochial school children.

But inside the Administration's economic councils, the idea has consistently gotten a frosty reception from the President's top tax experts.

In a series of confidential memoranda, the Treasury Department's tax men have made it clear they think such credits would complicate the tax code, be difficult to police and hard to keep under control once established.

Their warnings, however, have gone unheeded by President Nixon, who is apparently paying more attention these days to his political advisers than his economic experts.

One of the strongest memos appeared on the desk of presidential counselor John Ehrlichman as early as August 12, 1969. In it, Deputy Assistant Treasurer John Nolan, an expert on tax policy, said flatly such credits were inadvisable.

The opposition to the idea has continued ever since, although the Treasury experts have been more discreet about it since Nixon has made it plain he thought the idea would pay big political dividends.

On November 27, 1970 for example, then Assistant Treasury Secretary for Tax Policy Edwin Cohen sent another memo to the White House. Cohen discussed both the pros and cons of tax credits, but strongly hinted he didn't like the idea.

Virtually the same message was repeated in yet another Cohen memo, this one dated June 14, 1971, and addressed to the President's protector of special interests, Peter Flanigan.

Cohen expertly couched his opinions in carefull worded phrases, but his attitude was clearly negative. He pointedly reviewed the sizable opposition to tax credit plans and specifically referred to the 1969 Nolan memorandum which recommended against such schemes.

"In general," Cohen wrote, "there are a number of reasons why those concerned with income tax policy and administration are inclined to approach with reluctance the granting of an allowance through the income tax structure of deductions or credits for personal expenditures unrelated to the earning of income . . . ."

Since Cohen was the Administration expert most "concerned with income tax policy," he was apparently speaking for himself.

My associate Joseph Spear reached Cohen, who has recently been promoted to undersecretary, at his vacation retreat in Denmark, Me. He insisted that he had taken no personal position on the tax credits issue. He said he was merely summarizing the "pros and cons" in his memo to Flanigan, who was, at the time, "the White House liaison man with Treasury."

TRADE FOR PEACE

President Nixon is counting upon a trade boom to help keep the peace between the two superpowers.

He foresees a commercial relationship between the Soviet Union and the United States that will end the cold war indefinitely. His optimism is based upon the reports of U.S. officials who have been talking trade in Moscow.

They have told the President that the Soviets not only are eager to do businss with the United States, but can't understand why the United States has treated Russia commercially as a small power.

These officials predict that Soviet-American trade will start slowly, grow gradually and then suddenly boom. Shipments of grain to Russia alone, they say, will surpass the one-billion-dollar mark.

In return, Russia has developed a hugh supply of pressurized gas which the United States will need for energy. Arrangements are now being negotiated for the United States to help finance a multibillion dollar Soviet pipeline that will deliver the gas to American tankers.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

Nixon and Eagleton -- President Nixon has told intimates that, in his view, George McGovern made a mistake in dropping Tom Eagleton from the ticket. Throughout the Eagleton affair, Nixon privately sympathized with the deposed nominee. Perhaps the President remembered how he, as the Republican vice presidential candidate, had come under fire in 1962. He had been the beneficiary of a fund, underwritten by California businessmen, to help pay his senatorial expenses. Although Nixon denied the fund was tainted, GOP leaders urged that he resign from the ticket. Nixon, fighting to stay on the ticket, responded with a televised soap opera. He won; Eagleton, 20 years later, lost. The President, apparently remembering, identified with Eagleton.

Nixon's Instincts -- It's no secret that George McGovern is trying to draw President Nixon into a wide-open, slam-bang campaign. The President has assured his campaign aides that he will avoid the bobbytraps the McGovernites are setting for him. The aides are worried, however, that McGovern will arouse the President's natural combative instinct. "I do not believe in being passive under attack" Nixon has said. "You must fight back in life, especially in politics."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Shades of Reuther:
Militant Labor Chiefs Whipping Up Surprisingly
Powerful Political Machine for McGovern.

WASHINGTON -- So this handsome, lithe, 6-foot-2, athletic, winsome and erudite youngish labor leader arrived at the McGovern for President headquarters to find out he had one problem. He looked 41. But he is 51. One of the headquarter's executive strategists -- almost 30 years his junior – gave him a hearing

Seems that the visitor, an ardent McGovern supporter who almost singlehandedly had helped smash considerable opposition to McGovern on the convention floor, had come up with an idea which might help carry New York state. He had a computer set up which could reach over 100,000 union families instantly. The younger chap listened. Then he waved it all aside. Ah, said the strategist, it's that labor thing. We'll see. Come back again some time.

The tall, handsome, lithe, athletic labor leader gave the younger chap a strong handclasp, said call me some time, and went off to Mexico -- for a long vacation.

But he'll be back to rally to the McGovern-Shriver ticket. He's one of a power phalanx of labor chiefs who are building a cost-to-coast political machine for the Democratic ticket -- a machine which has gone virtually unnoticed amid the uproar over what is being misinterpreted as "labor neutrality."

Actually there is powerful labor support for George McGovern. It will grow even stronger if the candidate's hostile young managers don't alienate the labor chiefs – as the staffers have in the past two weeks. Little of this labor support springs from affection for either George McGovern or Sargent Shriver. These labor chiefs are the traditional unreconstructed Democrats who want an ally, not a neutral, in the White House. They are the men who were the youthful militants of the final years of the Roosevelt era. They are the men who rocked and rolled with such militants, now dead, as Sidney (Clear it with Sidney) Hillman who actually invented labor politics, and the late Walter Reuther who once hoped such politics would make him president of the U.S. -- incidentally, a dream once nurtured by Hillman himself.

It was Hillman, then president of the men's clothing workers' union who organized the old CIO-Political Action Committee (PAC), and Walter, as CIO president, who had seen it as the nation's governing "party."

And now the old cast has been replaced by the youths of yesteryear – but the script is the same. It has gone virtually unnoticed that the Democratic National Committee's new executive director is William (Bill) H. Dodds – one of Hillman's and Reuther's young men. Now 50, Dodds, who apprenticed in the old CIO-PAC for Hillman and in recent years has been the United Auto Workers (UAW) chief of lobby and strategy here, is a crack administrator, Though he has worked the "Hill" for the Reuthers, for Leonard Woodcock and the auto union for more than six years, Dodds still is a member of Local 6, General Motors Division UAW. He is an old and intimate friend of candidate McGovern.

His job is to mesh with labor and all other special-interest groups as well as help operate the National Committee. Note too that this is the highest post ever held by a labor official in the Democrats' national establishment.

And there is a direct tie with the National Labor Committee for the election of McGovern-Shriver. On K Street here, this operation is swinging into gear, greased by heavy donations of several big unions. The committee raised some $500,000 in a few days. Already it has set up 30 statewide committees. Now it is swiveling down into the counties and cities. In the executive director's seat is an old Sidney Hillman youth -- Howard Samuels, on loan from the men's clothing workers' union.

Most of the money, muscle and manpower is supplied by three of the 21 unions which launched the committee– Jerry Wurf's fantastically expanding State, County and Municipal Employees, Red Smith's powerful 900,000 - member Machinists, and the 1.5 million-member auto union. And handling the gears in the background is the UAW's vice president Pat Greathouse, another of the once-upon-a-time Reuther youth.

They've whipped up staff, specialists, cadres and all sorts of vote-getting machinery. Supposedly their contact is one or the other of McGovern's top team, Frank Mankiewicz or Gary Hart.

As Joe Beirne, head of the Communications Workers of America (500,00 members) said the other day, "We think we can win or we wouldn't be throwing our money and time into this. We're pros. We don't need the exercise."

They are pros. And they've won elections for Presidents -- including Jack Kennedy. They are militants. They get out the vote while such pro-Nixon unions as the construction workers pledge friendship and then realize they just have neither the machinery nor the experience to do more than appear in photos with friend Richard Nixon. The White House is well aware of this latter-day phenomenon.

This phenonmenon is one of the sleepers of the campaign. This labor machine could carry wuch key states as New York and California for McGovern -- especially when allied with unions that go for votes instead of headlines. There's only one "but."

"There are young, unknowing staff people around McGovern who are driving us away," one left-of-left-center labor official mused quietly the other day. "Some of those young intellectuals actually have a hatred for us labor people. We're just not revolutionary enough for them. Anything which has been around since 1968 is Establishment for them. We could win if they don't turn this into a political funeral."

Urge Hoarding For Atomic War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, at a time when consumers are paying record high prices for groceries, says Americans should hoard food just in case of atomic attack.

The recommendation was included in an updated pamphlet issued Thursday, the day the department reported food prices soared to record heights. The pamphlet, entitled "Family Food Stockpile for Survival," was first issued in Aug. 1961, a period when civil defense and fear of nuclear attack were prevalent.

"Every family should either build up and keep a two-week supply of regular food in the home at all times or assemble and maintain a special twoweek stockpile of survival foods in the fallout shelter or home," the USDA advised.

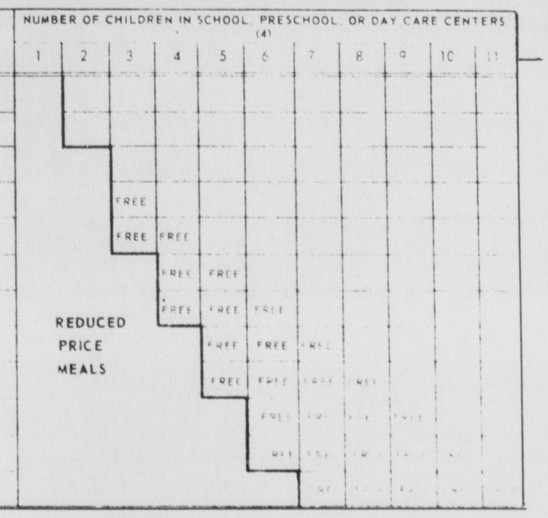

The publication, identified as "slightly revised" in July this year, included sample menus for families hiding in fallout shelters until threats of nuclear contamination passed.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Blocked by a Chinese veto of its application for U.N. membership, Bangladesh will attempt at the General Assembly this fall, debate to revive its flagging chances for admission.

China in an anticipated action Friday night cast the sole negative vote in the Security Council to prevent admission of Bangladesh.

Although 11 of the 15-member nations voted for the immediate entry of the former eastern region of Pakistan, a veto by one of the five permanent council members was sufficient to nullify the majority vote.

Bangladesh representatives let it be known in advance of the crucial vote that the situation was hopeless. But they said they would press in the three-month assembly session beginning Sept. 19 for the moral backing of the organization's 132 members.

The assembly cannot reverse a council decision. But an overwhelming expression of support in the assembly for Bangladesh's membership could result in a recommendation that the Security Council reconsider the matter.

Already in advance of Friday's council session, Yugoslavia asked that the assembly place on its agenda an item on "the admission of new members."

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Frigid House

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Be there ever so many payments, Roger firmly believed that there was no place like home. Thus, with wife in hand, he went out to buy one. And the one he bought was a brand new one hot off of Max's Development Line.

Unfortunately, the house turned out to be anything but hot. In fact, its heating system offered absolutely no warmth at all.

With his teeth chattering and the water on his knees frozen, Roger sued Max for selling him a frigid house with a bum heating system.

"I saw a blonde on the street the other day," he told the judge, "that radiated more heat than the pipes in my house."

"Then he should have brought her home," was Max's answer, "because once a builder sells a house, he's no longer responsible for it. Any heating difficulties become the problem of the buyer. 'Let the buyer beware!' That's the law."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Max liable for selling Roger a frigid house?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that ancient principles of law that make no sense in today's society should be discredited. When a person buys a home, it cannot be disputed that he relies upon the skill of the developer in providing it with a heating system that is reasonably fit for its intended purpose. And if it isn't, concluded the judge, the developer should be held responsible.

Britain's Ancient Mariner Dead At 70

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Sir Francis Chichester, Britain's old man of the sea, has developed pneumonia and his condition "is giving rise to grave anxiety," the Royal Naval Hospital here reported today.

Sir Francis, 71 next month, has been in the hospital for more than a week receiving blood transfusions. A malignant growth affecting his spine had produced anemia. Today's hospital bulletin was the first report of pneumonia complicating treatment.

Chichester gained world fame in 1967 by sailing alone around the world, making only one stop.

He pulled out of a transatlantic yacht race earlier this summer because of health problems.

A spokesman at the hospital announced: "Sir Francis Chichester died peacefully at 2:30 p.m. this afternoon."

He had been receiving treatment there for over a week, including blood transfusions.

A malignant growth affecting his spine had produced anemia. The hospital announced earlier in the day that his condition had been complicated by pneumonia.

Chichester was not the first man to sail around the world alone. Capt. Joshua Slocum, an American, completed the first solo circumnavigation in 1898.

But the Englishman was the first to do it with only a single stop, at Sydney, Australia. Chichester made the 14,100-mile journey from Britain to Australia in 107 days, and then sailed on 15,500 miles to Britain in 119 days. The trips then were the longest single-handed nonstop voyages under sail by man.

The trip earned him a knighthood from Queen Elizabeth II and a hero's welcome here on his return.

"The joy of living comes from action, from making the attempt, from the effort—not from success," he once said.

His effort captured the imagination of the world at a time when the era of space exploration was well under way.

He set out only eight years after doctors told him he had only three weeks to live. They diagnosed advanced lung cancer and said his chances of survival without an operation were nil.

Earlier this summer he had to pull out of a transatlantic yacht race because of the health problems that put him in the hospital here and proved fatal today.

Killer Bees Slowly Moving To N. America

WASHINGTON (AP) — Swarms of ferocious honey bees that have been known to kill both humans and animals are moving toward the United States from Brazil at the rate of 200 miles a year.

There seems to be no natural barrier to block the bees and they could be in North America within four to six years, says a study financed by the Agriculture Department.

"The most alarming and best-known characteristic of Brazilian bees is their aggressivenness," according to the report. "Hundreds of bees become airborne and pursue and sting any animals or people within 100 meters of the apiary.

"There are many reports of animals and even people being killed by stings of Brazilian bees," it continued.

The report issued Wednesday by the National Research Council and the National Academy of Sciences is the result of a trip by scientists last November and December to the bee area just north of the Amazon River in Brazil.

The study calls the bees "objectionable and dangerous" and says it is essential "to do whatever can be done" to keep the bees out of North America.

Commercial honey bees in the United States are of European descent. The Brazilian bee, though smaller, flies faster and farther, works harder at making honey, but become angrier much sooner than its northern relatives, the report states.

The Brazilian swarms began in 1956 when some queen bees from Africa were introduced in the state of Sao Paulo, with the intention of improving European types there. Care was taken to use sieves called "double queen excluders" for keeping the vicious African queens in place.

"Unfortunately, however, a visiting beekeeper, not understanding the situation, removed the double queen excluders and 26 swarms headed by the queens from Africa escaped in 1957," the report said.

Brazilian beekeepers tried to dilute the strain of African bees by introducing thousands of more agreeable Italian queens in 1963-64. Queens are fully mature females which mate with drones and lay thousands of eggs.

Natioal Poll Shows Most For Abortion

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A Gallup Poll says more Americans than ever before—64 per cent of the public—believe only a woman and her physician should decide whether she has an abortion.

Fifty-six per cent of the Catholics in the nationwide survey took the liberal stand on abortion despite their church's official opposition, the Gallup Organization reported Friday.

The poll, taken in June, also showed 73 per cent of Americans thought teen-agers should have access to professional birth control information, services and counseling. Favoring the position, also opposed by their church, were 68 per cent of the Catholics.

Previous Gallup Polls found the view that abortion is a doctor-patient decision favored by 57 per cent of Americans last January and by 40 per cent in November 1969.

The Democratic and Republican parties this summer both rejected platform planks declaring abortion a matter of conscience for every woman.

Gallup's survey of 1,574 adults 18 years and older found 68 per cent of the Republicans, 59 per cent of the Democrats and 67 per cent of the independent voters in favor of the liberal abortion stand. Sixty-four per cent of the women and 63 per cent of the men took the liberal view.

F D A Plans To Regulate Blood Banking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced steps today to bring the entire blood-banking business under federal regulation for the first time.

The proposed regulations are aimed mainly at up to 5,000 small, local blood banks that account for 15 per cent of all blood and at all centers that collect blood for separation into component parts.

The regulations, slated to go into effect after a 60-day comment period, would create for the first time uniform national regulation of blood-banking.

At present only eight states license or regulate intrastate blood banking. Some 530 larger blood banks, accounting for 85 per cent of the nation's blood supplies are federally regulated because they operate across state lines.

The new regulations, in effect, extend federal regulation to all intrastate blood business. The major impact will be on community-based commercial and hospital blood banks.

Criminal penalties are called for in the new federal regulations.

Firefighters Advance On California Blaze

Howling winds which earlier had hindered efforts to harness California's largest brush fire of the year subsided today, allowing a weary 2,100-man force to gain ground on the flames.

The winds, which whipped up to 40 miles an hour Friday night, today presented no problem in battling the 16,500-acre fire near Ojai, northwest of Los Angeles, according to Hal Sebring, U.S. Forest Service information officer.

Fire fighters worked to control a 3,440-acre fire near Banning in the San Bernardino National Forest and mop up at the scene of a 1,760-acre fire in Healdsburg in Northern California. A fire in the Sequoia National Forest remained out of control.

The Ojai fire—which authorities said was caused by illegal fireworks—had burned 350 acres of the Los Padres National Forest on the western edge of the 53,000-acre Sespe Creek sanctuary, home of the nearly extinct California condor.

A spokesman said the fire was still miles away from the birds' nesting place and most of the birds were in Kern County about 50 miles to the northeast. Only 60 of the vulture-like birds are known to exist.

Fire fighters had managed by this morning to carve a fire line around 14 miles of the blaze's 24-mile perimeter, the spokesman said.

Cost of fighting the fire was estimated at $1.5 million, he added.

The Healdsburg blaze destroyed eight homes, 18 other structures and 10 vehicles before it was controlled Thursday night. Damage to property was estimated at $113,000.

A force of 925 men using 10 air tankers contained the San Bernardino National Forest fire Friday but it was not known when it would be brought completely under control. The fire, which had a 15-mile perimeter, caused no structural damage.

In the Kern Canyon area of the Sequoia National Forest, 500 men aided by six air tankers, four small planes and helicopters sought to control a 365acre fire. There were no structures in the area, fire officials said.

Candidates Invited To Debate On Radio

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — Invitations to participate in a radio station debate have been issued to the two candidates for governor of Missouri, Democrat Ed Dowd and Republican Christopher "Kit" Bond.

The invitation to appear before a live audience here Sept. 18 or 19 was extended by Jerrell A. Shepherd, owner of KWIX-KRES FM, in Moverly.

Dowd and Bond have been asked to appear in a television debate and Shepherd said if they accepted his invitation, it would be the first radio debate by gubernatorial candidates.

Shepherd said he suggested each candidate speak 15 to 20 minutes then be permitted 10 minutes for rebuttal.

Ann Landers

Cooks Deserve Tips Too.....

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago I was still a teen-ager. Three years ago I was still a virgin. My lover dropped me for another girl whom he later married when her father offered him a nice job. Now when he runs into me at social functions he gives me a knowing wink.

What I remember most about our love affair was the constant fear of pregnancy. Like so many other stupid kids we had the idea that any attempt to prevent pregnancy made the relationship cheap and unnatural. (How crazy can you get?)

I now realize that virginity is a young woman's most precious gift. I am ashamed for having laughed at this concept and having considered it ridiculous and phony. My question is, shall I tell my wonderfully mature, highly-principled fiance about the past affair before we marry, or live in fear that the cad with the knowing wink will one day brag about his conquest and do me in? I hope you will answer. --- Ann Onimou

Dear Ann: If your fiance is "wonderfully mature and highly-principled" he won't ask. To volunteer such information would be stupid. Such confessions might be considered "good for the soul" or some people call it "clearing the air," but my mail tells me it can be a time bomb that might explode later and destroy a relationship.

Dear Ann Landers: As a cook (chef is the fashionable word these days) I was interested in the battle regarding tipping. I'm not saying the cook deserves to be tipped instead of the waitress, but I believe it would be fair to split it. After all, they need each other.

You expressed sympathy for the waitress who had to lift heavy trays. Do you have any idea what a huge pot of potatoes weighs? And those enormous roasted that must be lifted from the oven aren't exactly a bag of feathers.

During the summer months the waitresses have the benefit of air-conditioning while the cook is in the kitchen boiling with his soups and sauces. I've both jobs and I prefer cooking because it is more creative.

I'm off work now -- took a leave of absence to go on a diet. I've got to lose the 40 pounds I put on tasting and enjoying my own cooking. Which reminds me, Ann, tell your readers if they see a thin cook, don't eat in the restaurant. The food's not good because the cook doesn't care. --- Gertie The Gastronomist

Dear Gert: Thank you for letting us know what goes on behind those kitchen doors, and my compliments to the chef. But I'm afraid you are asking too much from the eating public if you expect them to take on a whole new layer of gratuities for service in the average restaurant. It is up to the staff to decide how the tips should be divided among themselves.

Dear Ann: I've got a touchy problem -- and I do mean touchy. It's my dad. He can't keep his hands off me.

I'm 18, the youngest in a family of five kids. My dad is forever dragging me on his lap when I watch TV, patting my backside when I'm walking past him, or kissing me hello and goodbye even if I'm just going to the grocery store.

I told Mom I didn't like it but she says, "You're his baby, be nice to him."

I don't want to hurt his feelings but I am not a baby and I wish he'd keep his hands off. --Touchy Me

Dear T.M.: Personal messages are best delivered personally and not through a third party. Tell your dad how you feel about this. If you express yourself in a mature manner it might solve the problem -- somewhat.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lee Eddy

Eddy-Hunter

NEW MADRID — The Immaculate Conception Catholic Church was the setting August 19 for a nuptial mass at 2 p.m. uniting Miss Mary Catherine Hunter and Jerry Lee Eddy in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal E. Hunter Jr. and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eddy of New Madrid Route One.

The Rev. Father S. W. Bauer performed the double ring ceremony before an altar adorned with twin urns of yellow and apricot gladioli, white daisies and greenery backed with an arrangement of greenery. Matching arrangements were placed on each of the side altars. Lighted tapers lines the bridal aisle and the pews were marked with sprays of yellow and apricot gladioli and daisies secured with apricot ribbon bows.

Lee and Craig Hunter, brothers of the bride, served as acolytes.

Miss Eva Horton, organist, played a medley of selections and the processional and recessional. Miss Lora Hunter, sister of the bride, was vocalist. She sang "The Wedding Song" and "Together", which she composed. She and Freddie Copeland provided guitar accompaniment.

Escorted down the white carpeted aisle by her father, the bride wore a white formal gown of silk organza over taffeta. It was lavishly trimmed with imported French Chantilly lace. The bodice and mandarin collar were overlaid with lace, with the front richly sprinkled with jewels. The waistline was marked with a tiny double scalloped lace band. The lace trim extended onto the full, sheer bishop sleeves that ended with deep cuffs banded with lace. The demi-bell skirt was so richly trimmed with more of the lace motifs, and a deep band encircled the bottom of the skirt forming scallops all around. The full detachable train fell from the waist into a full chapel length. It was made of self fabric and was touched with more hand-clipped jeweled motifs. Her tiered elbow length veil of illusion was secured to a petal cap sprinkled with pearls.

She carried a colonial bouquet of white clustered daisies and baby's breath tied with white ribbons.

The bride chose Miss Betty Lou Gardner of New Madrid for her maid of honor. She wore an apricot organza formal gown flocked with white daisies over a taffeta underdress in the same shade. The skirt was softly gathered to the bodice featuring a standup collar and long full sleeves gathered to deep cuffs. Matching satin ribbon marked the empire waist.

Bridesmaids were Miss Terry Ann Hardin of Senath and Miss Deborah Kay McRaven of New Madrid. They wore identically styled apricot gowns over yellow taffeta underdresses. Headpeices for the attendants were a bandeau of pearl centered apricot daisies with streamers tipped with miniature daisies at the center back. Each carried colonial bouquets of yellow and apricot pom-poms interlaced with apricot ribbon.

The groom chose Robert M. Henrickson II of New Madrid as best man. Groomsmen were Stanley Hall of New Madrid and Joe Vann of Matthews. The men also served as ushers.

A reception, immediately following the ceremony, was held at the New Madrid Country Club. Serving the guests were Mrs. Hal E. Hunter III, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Frank Lamanna of Memphis, Tenn. and Miss Lora Hunter, both sisters of the bride, Mrs. Charles Lynn Eddy, sister-in-law of the groom, and Mrs. Linda LaValle, cousin of the bride.

After a trip to Kentucky Lake, the couple will live in a mobile home in Cabana Courts. The new Mrs. Eddy will teach English in New Madrid junior high school and Eddy will resume his studies at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

Parents of the groom were hosts for a rehearsal dinner on the eve of the wedding at the Bank of New Madrid community room. In addition to members of the wedding party, those attending were the Rev. Father Bauer, Mrs. Hal E. Hunter Sr., grandmother of the bride, and family members of the bride and groom.

Miss McRaven and her grandmother, Mrs. Richard Phillips Sr., were hostesses Aug. 18 for a bridesmaids' luncheon at the New Madrid Country Club. Also attending were mothers of the bride and groom, Miss Lora Hunter and Mrs. Hal E. Hunter III.

Rhode Island Has Answering Service For Sex

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A telephone service designed to help people solve their sexual problems is being expanded from a local effort to serve all of Rhode Island.

Sponsors of the Sex Information Service program announced the expansion Tuesday, saying they had received more than 250 calls for assistance since the program began June 12.

Sponsored by Child Family Services of Newport, a United Fund agency, the program handles anonymous questions about topics such as venereal disease, birth control, homosexuality and love-making. Questions are received by volunteers who are backed up by psychiatric social workers, gynecologists, psychiatrists and a clinical psychologist.

Although the service first was concentrated in Newport County, organizers said calls coming in from throughout the state indicated a wider interest.

"Generally speaking, the average caller is a married man between the ages of 25 and 45," said the coordinator of the program, Mrs. Jan Prochaska, a psychiatric social worker.

Frustration Is: Nulified TD Runs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Talk about frustration. No one would blame Charley Leigh of the Miami Dolphins if he kept mumbling to himself today.

Here's why: Leigh ran back a punt 52 yards for an apparent touchdown against the Atlanta Falcons in the second quarter Friday night. The play was nullified because of a penalty.

That was bad enough, but more woe was to come. Leigh took the kickoff starting the second half and ran it back 99 yards for another apparent touchdown. It, too, was nullified because of a penalty.

The long runs thrilled a capacity crowd of 75,372 at the Orange Bowl and the two callbacks didn't stop the Dolphins from whipping the Falcons 24-10 in their National Football League exhibition.

What was Leigh's reaction? He wasn't too disappointed.

"I didn't know either time there was a penalty until I got in the end zone and turned around," said the 26-year-old graduate of Albany, N.Y. High School signed as a free agent by the Dolphins last year.

The Detroit Lions exploded for 20 points in the second quarter and went on to whack the Washington Redskins 23-10 in the other scheduled NFL exhibition. It was the Redskins' first defeat in pre-season competition and came before 52,647 at Tiger Stadium and a national television audience.

Greg Landry threw an eightyard touchdown pass to Ted Vactor to start Detroit's second period explosion. Errol Mann kicked a field goal minutes later, then Landry and Steve Owens combined on a 50-yard pass-run play for another TD.

A 39-yard run by George Nock to the Detroit one set up Washington's score early in the second half. Sonny Jurgensen passed to Charlie Taylor for the TD. Thereafter Detroit's defense dominated.

The Lions put on a goal line stand on their seven in the last quarter that thwarted Washington's fading hopes.

Miami relied mainly on a ground attack to down the Falcons. The Dolphins rushed for 149 yards on 39 carries with Jim Kiick plunging for two touchdowns from two and 12 yards out in the second half.

Miami's first TD came on a 16-yard pass from Bob Griese to Paul Warfield. That gave the Dolphins a 10-0 lead before Leigh broke away for the first of his two futile long runs.

Five more exhibitions are scheduled today with four Sunday and one Monday night.

The New York Jets play at Dallas in a nationally televised game tonight. In the others, Minnesota is at Cleveland, San Diego at New Orleans, Pittsburgh takes on Baltimore at Tampa and Buffalo meets Oakland at Berkeley, Calif.

On Sunday, Denver is at San Francisco, the New York Giants at New England, Chicago takes on Green Bay at Milwaukee and Los Angeles plays at Kansas City in the third nationally televised game of the weekend. Cincinnati is at Philadelphia Monday night.

Rebuilding Year At SEMO

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Seventy-nine prospects have reported to Southeast Missouri State's football training camp to begin preparation for what head coach Tom Thrower labels as "a rebuilding year."

Southeast Missouri is missing 18 seniors who played a big part in last year's second place MIAA finish and 7-3-1 overall record. Included in that group of seniors were 12 starters.

On the other hand, the Tribe will feature 26 returning lettermen and a good selection of recruits who may be able to plug the holes left by graduation.

Thrower described his recruiting efforts as quite successful. However, two of his top prospects failed to show up and another is a question mark due to medical reasons.

Failing to report were defensive tackle John Rawls of Ocala, Fla., and split end Alonzo Love of St. Louis. Love earned All -State recognition at Vashon High School last year and was regarded by Thrower as possibly the best freshman prospect in the state.

Harold Dilworth, who earned All-Metro honors as a defensive end at Beaumont High School in St. Louis, has not yet passed his physical examination.

Thrower pointed out that he was quite pleased with the group which did report and noted "squad condition was excellent."

The biggest area of concern for the Indian coaching staff is the defense where only three starters return. Missing are such standouts as second team All-Conference selections Bill Brown of St. Louis, a defensive end, and linebackers Doug Mackey of Scotch Plains, N.J. and Gene Figge of Ste. Genevieve. Figge led the Indians in tackles three of his four seasons on the squad.

Fortunately for the Indians there is quality in the trio of defensive veterans from last year. Returning for their senior years are defensive end Steve Derringer of Webster Groves and cornerback Jim Powell, also of Webster Groves. Both claimed first team berths on last year's All-MIAA team.

The third returning defensive starter is David Means, a junior from Hopkinsville, Ky. The big tackel received second team all-conference honors last year.

Offensively the biggest losses were All-MIAA fullback Ed Moss of Poplar Bluff, who was drafted by the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League, and running back Art Miller of Kirkwood.

Also gone from last year's offensive starting unit is tight end Dennis Maxey and tackle Jack Huelskamp, both of St. Louis. Huelskamp received second team all-conference honors.

Highlighting the list of offensive starters from last year is senior Dan Peiffer of Harper, Iowa, who was a first team All-MIAA selection, and second team choices, junior center Rich Stewart of Hillsboro, Ill., and senior guard Gary Rohr of East St. Louis, Ill.

Also back is last year's number one quarterback Lance Brune, a junior from Cape Girardeau. John Gabrisch, a junior from Hazelwood, who saw some action last year when Brune was injured, is also slated to see a lot of action this year.

Among the top transfers in the Indian camp are Steve Rogers of Chaffee, who played a year at the University of Missouri, John Isom from Ellsworth, Iowa, Junior College, Bruce Bufford from Florissant Valley Junior College, and Cape Girardeau native Ben Johnson from Centerville, Iowa, Junior College.

Summing up the offensive prospects for the coming season, Thrower said, "We ought to be able to put one good offensive unit on the field, but we will have very little depth, as is always the case." Last year key injuries to offensive unit starters ruined Indian hopes for a big year.

The Indians began using full pads Monday night as they started the rough work which, Thrower says, "will teach them how to protect themselves again."

The first scrimmage of the pre-season was held Tuesday night and the second was scheduled Thursday night. A third will be Saturday at about 8 p.m. at Houck Stadium.

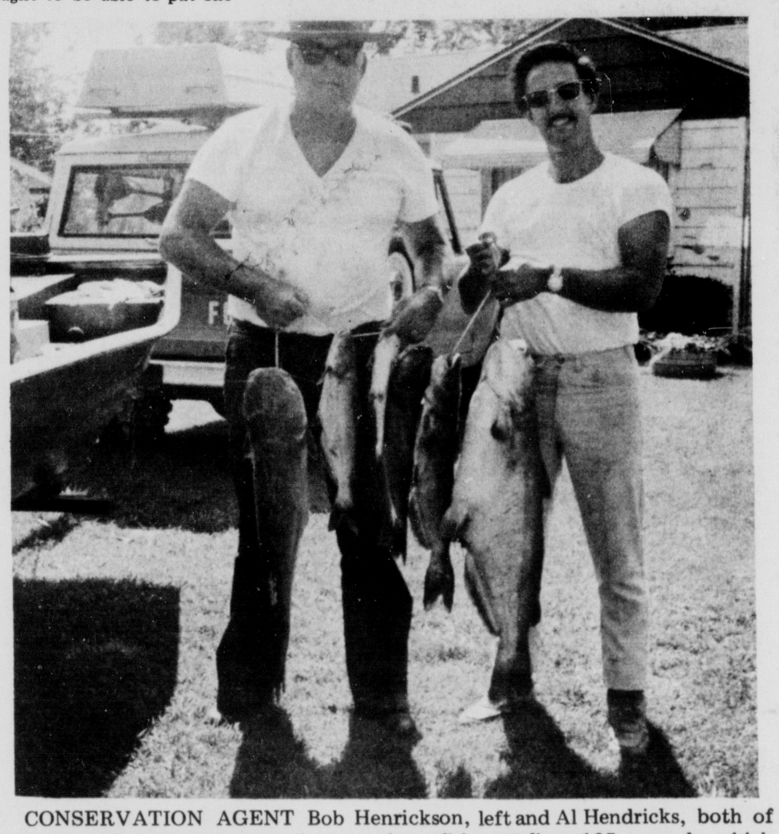

Thrower, in discussing the purpose of these scrimmages, said, "From them we find out who the young players are we should spend time training and how much the older players have improved."

The season opener will be Sept. 9 at Cleveland, Miss., against Delta State College.

The schedule:

Olympics Open

MUNICH (AP) — The rich old men who run the Olympics with concern for power, politics and prestige finally turned the 20th Summer Games over to the athletes in opening pomp Saturday after weeks of bitter wrangling.

Almost as if in mockery of the bickering, the first official sound of the Games was the mellow baritone mooing of alpine horns, the signal to start the opening ceremony. This was followed later by the rattle of old blunderbusses instead of the customary military cannon salute.

The 10,000 best young men and women athletes of 123 nations paraded in their team dress uniforms and a lithe, blond German runner lighted the Olympic flame.

But absent from the parade ranks were the 43 athletes of white - dominated Rhodesia, voted out of the games when the International Olympic Committee yielded to the clamor of black African nations to reverse an agreement made a year earlier.

Avery Brundage, retiring this year as president of the IOC, called this move sheer power politics that did violence to Olympic ideals.

Brundage sadly noted that it was the first time a vote had gone against him in 20 years as IOC president - so he mounted the rostrum to preside over his last Games on a note of defeat, rather than triumph.

But as the torch flared and the athletes paraded, the games turned again to what they are supposed to be - man - to- man competition for medals.

For 16 days they will run, jump and swim - and do scores of other strong, swift and agile things in pursuit of 195 gold medlas, the highest number ever to be awarded in Olympic competition. In all there will be 1,109 gold, silver and bronze medals.

The opening ceremony was a mixture of military precision, dedication to ideals and gestures of friendship carried out within sight of a hill built of Munich's heaped-up rubble from World War II.

West German president Gustav Heinemann, official sponosr of the Games, entered the stadium at 10 a.m., EDT, on the signal of eight alpine hornscurved wooden instruments about 20 feet long that emit a deep-throated tone used for calling from peak to valley to peak in the Alps, which rise within sight of Munich on a clear day.

A 60-man military band played the German national anthem as the throng of 80,000 - 45,000 seated, 35,000 standing - rose in the huge gray concrete stadium.

The teams entered to special music, a combination of tunes from various countries arranged in march time. The tunes included "When the Saints Go Marching In" for the United States, "Tiritomba" for the Italians and one called "Auf du Junger Wandersmann" - which translates roughly to "Get Up Young Wanderer" — for the Germans.

Finals Set

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Hammond, Ind., and Taiwan play for the Little League Championship today, in a geographical matchup that almost duplicates the 1971 final.

Last year, a different Taiwan team drubbed Hammond's neighboring city, Gary, Ind., 12-3. And Many visiting newsmen, spectators and Little League officials feel the result could be similar this year.

Such predictions are based on opening round and semifinal games played earlier this week in which the Taiwan youngsters outscored the opposition 18-1.

In their opener last Wednesday, Taiwan shut out New City, N.Y., 9-0, and followed with a 9-1 semifinal victory Thursday over Pearl City, Hawaii.

Hammond, meanwhile, squeaked through the opening round with a 2-1 extra inning triumph over Vienna, Va. In Thursday's semifinal, the Indiana boys jumped to a 10- 2 lead over San Juan, P.R., then held on for a 10- 7 victory when the Latin Americans charged back in the late innings.

In a consolation game for third place today, San Juan, P.R. was scheduled to play Pearl City.

Sports Briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Left wing Craig Reichmuth and defenseman Hal Willis signed today to play with the New York Raiders of the World Hockey Association.

Reichmuth, a Canadian from Russell, Man., played last season with Tidewater in the American Hockey League and Fort Worth in the Central Hockey League. Willis, another Canadian from Edmonton, Alta. played last season with Seattle and Denver in the Western Hockey League.

MUNICH (AP) — The West German organizers of the Olympic Games have made no speical arrangements for possible defections from east bloc countries, a spokesman disclosed Saturday.

"They would be handled as any others at any other time," he said. There are two refugee centers, one in West Germany proper and another in West Berlin, where refugees are processed.

Asked if news of a defection would be made public, the spokesman replied: "No, but it would probably surface anyway."

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former Drake University head basketball coach and athletic director Jack McClellan will assume duties of Big Eight Conference assistant commissioner on Sept. 18.

The 52 - year- old McClellan, from Indianapolis, Ind., was named to the post Friday. He is to work with conference Commissioner Charles M. Neinas and will supervise the league championship events.

Phillies Have Record Setter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southpaw Ken Reynolds of the Philadelphia Phillies has lost 12 straight baseball games. No, that isn't a typographical error. That's 12, as in a dozen.

"I don't want to give up on him," said Manager Paul Owens after his pitcher dropped a 6-1 decision to the Cincinnati Reds Friday night to tie a team record for futility.

Reynolds, who hasn't won since last season, duplicated Russ Miller's unattractive mark of 1928 and continued to flirt with the National League and major league records.

The National League record for consecutive losses is 18, shared by Clifton Curtis of the 1910 Boston Braves and Roger Craig of the 1963 New York Mets. John Nabors set the major league record of 19 with the Philadelphia A's in 1916.

"I hope that Reynolds doesn't want to give up on himself," continued Owens. "With a little luck, and if we'd score some runs for him, he could easily be pitching .500 ball instead of being 0-12.

"He has a good attitude and I don't think he's discouraged. And I intend to keep him in our regular rotation. Next year, he could easily win 12, 13, or 14 for us."

Cincinnati improved on its strong first-place margin in the National League West as the second-place Houston Astros lost to the Montreal Expos 4-3 and fell nine games behind.

Elsewhere, the Pittsburgh Pirates split a doubleheader with the Los Angeles Dodgers, winning the first 3-2 in 12 innings and losing the second, 4-3. The Pirates boosted their front-running margin in the East to 12 games as second-place New York dropped a 2-1 decision to the Atlanta Braves.

The San Francisco Giants whipped the Chicago Cubs 11-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals split a pair with the San Diego Padres, winning the first game 7-4 and losing the second, 8-7.

American League scores: New York 4, Kansas City 1 in the first game of a doubleheader and Kansas City 5, New York 1 in the second; Boston 4, Texas 0; Baltimore 5, Oakland 3 and Cleveland 2, California 1 in 11 innings. Rain washed out two games—Chicago at Milwaukee and Detroit at Minnesota.

Reynolds had an unaccustomed 1-0 lead, but failed to hold it in the fourth inning as the Reds came up with five runs—two on opposing pitcher Don Gullett's single. Gullett, not incidentally, completed his first game of the year to make his record 6-7. He had been sidelined by hepatitis.

Relief pitcher Mike Marshall hit a ninth-inning double to score John Boccabella with the tie-breaking run, giving Montreal its triumph over Houston. The bullpen ace earned his 14th victory of the season.

"I would have settled for a single," Marshall said of his game-winner, his first extrabase hit at Montreal in three years.

1973 Wheat Allotment Notices To Producers

Notices of 1973 wheat allotments and an official explanation of the 1973 wheat set-aside program have been mailed to producers in New Madrid County, according to Bernard Recker, chairman of the County Agricultural Stablization and Conservation (ASC) committee.

All participants will set-aside an acreage equal to 86 per cent of their farm domestic allotment, will earn wheat certificate payments based on their domestic allotment, and will be eligible for commodity credit corporation loans on wheat grown on participating farms.

An additional set-aside option also is offered, Recker said. Contingent upon their 1972 wheat acreage, producers may set-aside an additional acreage up to 150 per cent of their domestic wheat allotment in return for a payment of 88 cents a bushel times established yield times acres of additional set-aside.

A producer who accepts the additional set-aside option also agrees to limit his production of 1973 wheat. The limitation is determined by the formula: 1972 spring and winter wheat planted acreage on the farm plus any 1972 additional set-aside, minus the 1973 additional set-aside.

"The big point to make at this time is that a wheat grower in the 1973 wheat program can go one of two ways: One - maintain required set-aside and conserving base acreages with no limit on his wheat acreage. Two -- maintain required set-aside, additional set-aside, and conserving base acreages and limit his wheat acreage," the ASC committee chairman said. "He should check with the county ASCS office for full details."

A number of other important items are covered in the official explanation, including a reminder that 1973 is the year when a farmer who did not plant a program crop during the past two seasons can lose his allotment if he fails to plant for a third successive year.

Substitution provisions are spelled out. Soybeans, corn, grain sorghum and barley may be substituted for wheat to perserve allotment history.

"Then, too, I want to remind producers that set-aside acreage -- both the required and any additional set-aside -- must be of the same average quality as the other cropland on the farm," Recker said.

(Winter wheat areas should use the following paragraph, and all areas may use it: Producers may ask for set-aside inspection and measurement service from the county ASCS office in order to assure themselves well ahead of time that set-aside land is acceptable. This service is offered at cost.)

Allotment notices to wheat producers are sent several months before sign-up, at which time farmers given official notice of their intent to participate in the set-aside program and designate their set-aside acreage. The official sign-up period has not yet been announced.

Farmers Got 41.1 Cents On Food Dollar In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in July received 41.1 cents from every dollar spent by consumers for food, the most in more than two years. But the lofty peak may not last long.

Higher market prices for hogs, frying chickens, eggs and some fresh vegetables helped boost the farm share of the consumer dollar from the 40.6 cents reported for June.

The farm share had not risen above 41 cents since early 1970, according to USDA records, and most of the time has been in the 36 to 40-cent range.

According to a report on retail "market basket" food costs issued Thursday, prices farmers received for the raw items rose three per cent from June. Cattle, however, failed to gain in average price for the month.

Cattle prices have slipped since their peak last month from around $40 per hundredweight at Omaha to less than $36 by mid-August. That points to a slippage in the farmer's ahre of the consumer food dollar when the August market basket is reported next month.

The market basket report, based on farm-produced items needed to feed a typical family for an entire year, showed retail grocery prices in July averaged 4.5 per cent higher than a year earlier and 1.8 per cent more than in June.

The so-called "farm value" of the market basket was reported up 11.9 per cent from a year earlier.

Based on July surveys, the entire market basket list cost $1,322 with farmers getting $544 and middlemen $778. In June, the basket cost $1,299 with farmers getting $528 and middlemen $771.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's turkey crop this year is expected to total 128.4 million birds, up seven per cent from 1971 and a record high, the Agriculture Department said.

Minnesota, the leading producer, is expected to raise 20.7 million birds, up 12 per cent from 18.4 million produced last year, the department said in a report.

Other major producing states and 1972 estimates included: California 17.5 million turkeys, up four per cent; North Carolina 12.4 million, up 22 per cent; and Missouri 10 million, up 15 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, in an attempt to curb further introduction of exotic Newcastle disease into U.S. poultry flocks, has banned all commercial imports of live pet and exotic birds.

The ban, effective on Thursday, applies to such birds as finches, canaries, parakeets, parrots and mynahs. It will remain in effect until it can show imports of birds will be free of Newcastle, officials said.

An exotic form of Newcastle disease, now said to be under control, wiped out some 3.9 million poultry and other birds, including those destroyed under quarantine actions. Most of the losses occurred in Southern California.

Alfalfa Could Profit Livestock

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

Alfalfa is a real special crop but not so special that you need to put off starting a field if it can fill a gap in your rougage program. A highly productive stand of alfalfa may fit into your livestock operations quite profitably.

Alfalfa can be grown on soils moderate to good in drainage if the soil test requirements for lime, phosphate and potash are met. Generally, alfalfa will produce 4 to 6 tons per acre on most good cotton or corn soil in Southeast Missouri. This means that most farmers who need an increased tonnage of hay for livestock or income should seriously consider alfalfa to produce much of this increase. Alfalfa is also an excellent rotation crop. High quality alfalfa hay is always in demand in this area by people who own horses.

For early growth, more winter hardy plants and better survival from weevil damage, seed alfalfa by September 10 in a moist seedbed. This means you will need to get busy right away. Get a soil sample to determine lime and fertilizer needs. Apply the recommended limestone, phosphate and potaxh before plowing. These should be plowed under when land is being prepared. Limestone is especially important to supply calcium and raise the pH to 6.5 to 7.0 in order for the legume bacteria to have a good medium to work in.

A firm seedbed is essential. Frequent light disking and harrowing will help. A corrugated roller or cultipacker is especailly useful in seedbed preparation. A good test of a firm seedbed is whether a tractor will leave no more than tread marks.

Plant certified seed of recommended varieties. Certification of seed insures varietal purity and identity. You know you are getting the variety and quality of alfalfa seed you want when the bag is sealed with a certified tag. Vernal, Buffalo, Ranger, Cody and Culver are most highly recommended for all parts of Missouri. They are resistant to bacterial wilt, winter- hardy and high in yield. Buffalo tends to grow later in the fall than Ranger and may have a slightly better adaptation to Southeast Missouri than Vernal or Ranger.

Inoculate your seed, or if you buy preinoculated seed, check on the method of application and expiration date to assure yourself of live inoculation bacteria. For a good start, use a starter fertilizer containing 25 to 30 pounds of nitrogen, 60 pounds phosphate and 25 to 30 pounds of potash per acre. Seed 15 pounds of seed per acre. Plant seeds not more than 1/2 inch deep, with the soil firmed around the seed to prevent drying out of the seedlings. Band seeding or broadcasting and covering with a corrugated roller are preferred methods. On seedbeds well prepared on plowed ground, 6-10 vigorous plants will remain and produce 6 tons or more per acre.

Alfalfa plants must be fed annually to stay healthy and productive. Poor nutrition means thin stands, weak plants and low yields. A good plan is to topdress alfalfa stands in the fall of the first hay year and each succeeding year. Fall topdressing usually works best because soils are drier than in spring and permit use of heavy spreading equipment. Either fall or after the first clipping are excellent times. Follow soil test recommendations for annual topdressing. It is well to apply annually 40 to 120 lbs. of phosphate, 120 to 240 lbs. of potash and 2 to 3 pounds of boron in mixed fertilizers.

Early cutting weakens the plants and late cutting gives lower quality hay. Cut at 1/10 bloom stage or when the new shoots start emergence from the crown. Last cutting should leave time for 8 inches of recovery growth before winter.

Milk Up 11c From Year Ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk prices paid producers in early August averaged $7.21 per hundredweight for Class I or bottling type, the same as in July but 11 cents more than a year earlier, says the Agriculture Department.

The department said retail prices for milk in major cities averaged 58.4 cents per onehalf gallon, up 0.2 cents from July and 0.4 from a year earlier.

Home-delivered milk averaged 68.5 cents per half gallon in the cities, the same as in July but 1 cent more than in August last year.

Campers Help Spread Moths

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says campers are helping spread gypsy moths from the infested areas of the northeast into other parts of the country.

A survey of 7,000 "recreational vehicles" leaving the northeast disclosed 68 carried gypsy moths.

"These tree-defoliating pests attach themselves to anything temporarily stationary, such as camping equipment and vehicles," officials said.

One mature gypsy moth caterpillar can eat up to one square foot of leaf area in a single day.

Idled Cropland Earns $2 Million

Scott County farmers earned over $2 million during 1971 on 48,809 acres of idled croplands.

Total figures represent set aside lands for cotton, wheat and feed grains.

According to Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service figures released by 10th District Congressman Bill D. Burlison, a total of 29,836 acres were set aside by feed- grain farmers, who earned $778,721 for the idled croplands. A total of $500,452 was paid for setting aside 7,659 acres of wheat land and $794,063 was paid for setting aside 11,314 acres of cotton.

Cotton Use To Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cotton use for domestic textile making and export sales is expected to increase, but a 25-percent larger crop will add some to surplus, says the Agriculture Department.

The cotton crop as of Aug. 1 was forecast at about 13.3 million bales. The department says total use during the 1972-73 season may exceed last season's 11.25 million bales, thus adding to the carry-over a year from now.

Cotton reserves going into the new-crop year which began Aug. 1 totaled about 3.3 million bales, the lowest in many years. Next year, if use turns out as expected, the stockpile could be built back up to around 4.75 million.

The projections were included in a summary of the cotton situation. The full report will be available later this month officials said.

First public recitation of the famous poem, "Casey at the Bat," was given by De-Wolf Hopper at Wallack's Theater, New York City, May 1, 1888.

Quality Set-Aside Strengthened for '73

Because payment deductions for less- than-average- quality set- aside land are being increased for the 1973 programs, producers can be better assured of equitable application of set- aside provisions in the 1973 wheat, feed grain, and cotton programs, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced.

For wheat and feed grain farms, when low- quality acreage is offered for set- aside -- that is acreage not representative of land on which the farm's crops are grown -- the entire payment will be based on the productivity of the set- aside land.

For cotton, the deduction rate will be comparable on a per- acre of set- aside to that applicable to wheat and feed grain set- aside. This announcement was made as a result of a study of 1971-72 program operations which revealed that a few producers with farms having both poor-quality and quality cropland have offered the poor- quality for set- aside and accepted deductions from their farm payments. The deductions were not enough to offset the monetary advantage gained by producing crops on the quality acreage rather than setting it aside from production.

The great majority of participants in thee set- aside programs have offered quality set- aside acreages in both 1971 and 1972, and the increased deduction rates for 1973 will affect relatively few producers.

In both 1971 and 1972, quality of set- aside has been emphasized, with a requirement that set- aside acreage be representative of cropland acreage on a participating farm. Deductions of set- aside payments are made in cases where set- aside land is not representative.

County ASCS offices will make available set- aside inspection and measurement service to 1973 program participants. This service, which is offered at cost, can provide assurance to farmers that their set- aside acreage is acceptable for quality and quantity. The set- aside inspection service was first offered in 1972. It is available now to any farmer who wants an early determination and will continue as long as needed.

Set- aside land representative of cropland on which crops are normally produced is needed to assure achievement of effective production adjustment, according to officials of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service which administers set-aside programs.

Under the Agricultural Act of 1970, participating wheat, feed grains, and cotton producers set- aside a percentage of their cropland, diverting it into conserving uses, and generally are free to produce as they choose on their remaining cropland. Under this program more decision - making has been returned to farmers. The program provides freedom to plant crops which are to their economic advantage. This has enabled them to make the most efficient use of their land, labor and machinery and has resulted in increased farm income.

The recently announced 1973 wheat program offers wheat farmers an even greater degree of flexibility in planning their 1973 cropping operations. They will have the added choice of voluntarily setting aside additional acreage for payment and agreeing to limit 1973 wheat acreage or of setting aside only the minimum acreage without restrictions on their wheat planting.

HOMESTEAD
SIKESTON, MO.
1401 E. MALONE 471-5920

An unexpected child can really rock the cradle.

Don't get us wrong.

We think children are priceless, too.

But if a child happens to be unplanned, it could mean financial pressures.

You see, a child is not just an extra mouth to feed. It's a whole other life to be provided for.

And that takes money.

Fact is, the cost to raise a child to age 18 ran around $25,000 (more for some, less for others, dependent on family income) in the mid-60's. And what inflation will do to the cost in the future is anybody's guess!

But no matter what the amount is, it's easy to see that the cost of rearing children is an economic reality one can't ignore. That is, if each child is to get what he or she deserves.

Which is why we advise every couple to plan how many children they want. And when they want them: when they can be a welcome addition rather than an accidental burden.

Because, as we all know, it's awfully hard to give with a full heart when one's pockets are empty.

Pemiscot Hospital Taxes To Be Cut

HAYTI — Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital officials revealed the hospital board of trustees has recommended to the county court a 25 per cent reduction in the tax rate. The tax rate which has been 20 cents per $100 assessed property valuation will be reduced to 15 cents per $100 valuation.

The county court has said it will accept the board's recommendation and reduce the tax rate later this month.

In a letter to the court from Julian Boyd, hospital board president, he explained the reduction was asked "because the financial status of the hospital at the present time is adequate and will not in any way affect the operation of the hospital in 1973."

Jack Tipton, hospital administrator, said several factors had made the tax cut possible, including better collection on all accounts and a better acceptance of the hospital by area residents.

"The costs to operate remain fairly constant and if the beds are filled the hospital has more income to meet these expenses," he said. He also cited the fact more people carry insurance, assuring the hospital will collect more accounts through the insurance companies.

Tipton said the hospital has 52 per cent private patients compared to 48 per cent Medicare- Medicaid patients. He said Medicaid-Medicare pays 84 per cent of actual hospital costs.

He mentioned the salary percentage has steadily dropped since 1967 except for the last year but operating costs have soared. Even with this, he said, a cut in the tax rate was possible.

Operating cost for the hospital last year was $1,817,762, compared to $859,207 in 1967. Tipton also expressed confidence that the new million- dollar nursing home now under construction would be able to pay for itself and not be a drain on the hospital's finances.

Poplar Bluff To Vote Tuesday On Sewer Bonds

POPLAR BLUFF — Poplar Bluff voters go to the polls Tuesday in a special election to accept or reject municipal bonds in the amount of $450,000 for sewer expansion in the northwest section of the city.

The bonds, which require a two-thirds majority for passage, will be used to finance the city's share of the $875,000 project to provide sewers to an area of the city which was annexed more than eight years ago.

If the bonds are approved, the city is expected to receive $425,000 in state and federal funds to pay for the remainder of the project. The general obligation bonds will be retired through existing tax devisions of the city without an increase in the tax levy, official said.

The sewer issue previously failed when tax increases were required to finance it, but now matching government funds will make it possible to finance the project without a local tax increase.

Arrest Three

Police announced three arrests yesterday. They were Joseph A. Willis, Memphis, Tenn., for public intoxication. Charles McCain, 1910 North street, disorderly conduct.

Helen Schuerenberg, 615 E. Kathleen, peace disturbance.

(cont. from p. 1)

St. Louis police were investigating the blast in the light of the Feb. 24 shooting death of Edward Steska, Business of Pipefitters Local 562 in St. Louis.

Shoulders, who was on Local 562's payroll as a "security guard" was questioned by police in the Steska murder—the investigation of which has turned up no arrests.

Local police remained tightlipped about any firm connection between the two deaths.

Shoulders, 44, was the son of a one-time St. Louis police lieutenant who served a prison term for perjury in the 1953 kidnaping of Bobby Greenlease of Kansas City. Only half of the $600,000 ransom was recovered when the kidnapers of the boy were arrested here.

Shoulders, who was arrested 20 times on charges ranging from speeding to suspicion of murder between 1954 and 1958, was indicted by a Madison County, Ill., grand jury in connection with the murder of Bobby G. Carr, a taxi driver, but the case never came to trial.

He was convicted and sentenced to six years in federal prison in 1959 for interstate theft and harboring a fugitive from justice and again in 1971 for violating the federal firearms act. His two year conviction on the latter charge was later set aside by the U.S. Supreme Court on grounds the government had failed to show that Shoulders handled a gun in interstate commerce.

Police were unable to question Harvill, whose brother George was shot to death in Caseyville, ill., in 1966.

A woman who had accompanied Shoulders to the lake was being held by Taney County authorities Friday night at the Branson city jail. Police would not identify the woman, saying she was being held in protective custody.

Q. I was wondering if the movie "Duel in the Sun," with Gregory Peck and Jennifer Jones, has ever been released for TV. This is one of the favorite movies from my childhood and I'm dying to see it again. Will it be on TV soon? — Mrs. T. L., Paterson, N.J.

A. "Duel in the Sun" has been available for TV showings for some years now and ABC gave it network exposure last January.

Q. I have a suspicion that there was a TV show about doctors on some years back with Peter Graves. Am I correct? I also think that the actor who plays the older Darrell brother in the lawyers' part of "The Bold Ones" was in the show. —Mrs. H.M., Charleston, W. Va.

What You Want To Know

A. Peter Graves did not play a doctor in any of his TV series. However, Joe Campanella, who plays James Farentino's brother in "The Bold Ones," did play a doctor in a CBS series titled "The Doctors and the Nurses." Campanella's co-stars in the medic series were Shirl Conway, Zina Bethune, Stephen Brooks and Michael Tolan.

Q. I used to adore "The Beverly Hillbillies" TV show and I recently saw and interview with Irene Ryan, who used to play Granny, and she indicated that she made a fortune or nearly so from the show. Is this true? —G.M., Millinocket, Me.

A. Irene Ryan and Buddy Ebsen did very well from their association with "The Beverly Hillbillies." Not all their money came from their salaries from the show...they made many personal appearances at rodeos and such, and this, plus their take from the show's international sales, put them in a comfortable income bracket.

Q. Is it too late to get a picture of Fess Parker as Daniel Boone? I really need such a photo. L.V.S., Memphis, Tenn.

A. We can't promise you success...but try the Publicity Dept. of 20th Century-Fox TV, West Pico Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.

Q. I heard that "Brian's Song," the superb Movie of the Week, was going to be released to movie theaters. I would pay to see it again, that's how much I enjoyed it. Is the release to theaters on the level? —P.A., Dundee, Miss.

A. "Brians's Song" was released in a Chicago theater and did very well and now Columbia may release it in other cities. The only other TV film which was released in a similar fashion was the award-winning "My Sweet Charlie," which starred Patty Duke and Al Freeman Jr.

Q. What was the name of the TV series in which Ross Martin first appeared? It wasn't the last one in which he played opposite Robert Conrad. I can't recall the name of the series even though I used to watch it pretty regularly. —M.S., Bridgeport, Conn.

A. Ross Martin was featured in the "Mr. Lucky" TV series. He had co-starring billing in "The Wild, Wild, West" with Robert Conrad

q. Vera Miles is my favorite mature actress on TV and my favorite young actor is John Rubinstein. A friend of mine said they appeared together in a TV film. What was it and will it be on again? —W.J., Memphis, Tenn.

A. Miss Miles and John Rubinstein appeared with Barbara Eden and Larry Hagman in the NBC World Premiere film, "A Howling in the Woods." It will probably be repeated during the rerun season.

Q. Who were the stars of a movie titled "Woman of Straw"? I say it was Sophia Loren and a sexy guy but my sister-in-law says I'm wrong. —C.L., Argonia, Kans.

A. "Woman of Straw" starred Sean Connery, Gina Lollobrigida and Ralph Richardson.

Q. This past September, we vacationed in Hawaii and we had the greatest time seeing Don Ho and his show. Tell us, has Don Ho ever starred in a Tv series? — Mrs. R.M., Wichita

A. The popular Hawaiian performer starred in a summer TV series on NBC some years back, and he has been a frequent guest star on many variety shows.

Q. Is Jack Webb the producer of "The D.A." which stars Robert Conrad? The show has all the same touches as "Adam-12" and "Dragnet." Also, is Robert Conrad related to William Conrad of "Cannon"? They don't look anything alike but I was wondering.—Mrs. T.G., Arcadia, Fla.

A. Jack Webb produces both law and order TV series, "The D.A." and "Adam-12." The two Conrads, William and Robert, are not related.

CBS REPORTS:

"THE MEXICAN CONNECTION"

WIDELY PRAISED ACCOUNT OF ILLICIT MEXICO-U.S. DRUG TRAFFIC TO BE REBROADCAST AUG. 30

CBS REPORTS: "The Mexican Connection," the widely praised, first-person account of the trafficking of an estimated $1-billion-a-year- in illicit drugs between Mexico and the United States, will be rebroadcast Wednesday, Aug. 30 (7:00 — 8:00 PM) on the CBS Television Network. (This CBS News broadcast was originally presented on the Network on June 25, 1972.)

CBS News producer Jay McMullen, the reporter on the broadcast, spent eight months in Mexico examining the intricate workins of the air smuggling operation -- the major problem in coping with the flow of drugs across the border, according to U.S. law enforcement officials.

McMullen looks at those who control the operations, how they are run, why they are so successful and what devices the Mexican and American governments are implementing to bring a halt to the traffic.

Following its initial broadcast, "The Mexican Connection" was praised by editors in the nation's press as "a revealing documentary" (New York Post); "...an absorbing broadcast" (Worcester, Mass., Evening Gazette); "...worthy of a Hollywood thriller" (The New York Times); "an excellent job of reporting" (Pittsburgh Post Gazette); and "an assignment (carried off) in the grand old tradition of the news business" (Columbus Citizen-Journal).

The CBS REPORTS broadcast provides an in-depth examination of how the air smuggling organizations function – from the cultivation of marijuana and opium poppy fields to the shipment of the drugs. There are also first-hand accounts from those directly involved in the operations -- pilots, financial backers, distributors and buyers.

According the McMullen, air smuggling operations burgeoned with the increase in production and availability of Mexican marijuana and opium -- operations which are highly organized and linked together on a nationwide basis.

"With the development of intricate flight plans which often utilize treacherous air routes to avoid radar detection, the drugs are brought into this country with relative ease, causing major problems for U.S. Customs officials," McMullen said.

Burton Benjamin was executive producer of CBS REPORTS: "The Mexican Connection."

"DR. SEUSS" HORTON HEARS A WHO"...

NO "KRATUNKULOUSITY" IN THE DR. SEUSS MENAGERIE

Wungs, Ooblecks, Grinches, Sneeches, Nizzards and Whos may pose certain problems for the producer-director of their television specials. But they are a joy to work with in one respect. These "stars" of the popular Dr. Seuss stories, in spite of their unique proportions, which demand specialized wardrobes, their peculiar vocabulary and their unusual ways, are never "kratunkulous," a Seussian word meaning temperamental.

"If one of our actors gives us any trouble, we just reach for an eraser," syas Chuck Jones, director and co-producer, with Theodor (Dr. Seuss) Geisel, of "Dr. Seuss' Horton Hears a Who," Peabody Awardwinning enimated special to be rebroadcast on the CBS Television Network Thursday, Aug. 31 (7:30 - 8:00 PM).

Horton, the rhyme-scheming elephant whose actions in support of his belief that "a person's a person no matter how small" have won him friends large and small all over the world, is no exception to the "kratunkulous" rule. The only problem he causes is the result of his wavy, fluffy ears and foot-long eyelashes.

Bringing the imaginative Seuss creations, including a big hearted pachyderm, to life is not only a challenge to Jones but an elephantine responsibility.

"Millions of youngsters all over the world are on intimate terms with these fantastic creatures that exist nowhere but in the fertile imagination of their creator," explains Jones. "In bringing them alive through the animation process, one wrong expression or one missing detail could bring an army of enraged kids down on our heads."

The problem of incurring the "kratunkulousity" of little readers everywhere is compounded by the fact that Jones' famous partner, Geisel, has an uninhibited way of sketching his characters, often varying them in his books from page to page.

But the animation director and the artist-writer, who claims he "never learned to draw" and is "really just a doodler," have reached an artistic compromise in their tandem translation of the original Dr. Suess "doodle drawings" to the animation board.

Jones refines the character, be it Sneetch, Snumm, Nerkle or fluffy-eared elephant, to the two men's mutual satisfaction before the key drawing is turned over to the animators.

And the actors never have a word to say about how they look.
